'Jealous' Kim blasts Kendall over bikini snap

The pregnant reality star's body insecurities come to a head as her little sister flaunts her figure online

The pregnant star has gained 20lbs

THERE'S NOTHING WRONG WITH A LITTLE SIBLING RIVALRY

– but Kim Kardashian's jealousy over half-sister Kendall Jenner reached new heights last week when she blasted the model for posting a sexy bikini selfie online.

Kim has spoken of hiding her "big arms" in coats

According to insiders, Kim, 34 – who'd been in Paris for baby wardrobe fittings – told Kendall she looked "too thin". It came just days after the mum-to-be admitted she'd put on 20lbs since falling pregnant with her second child, tweeting, "Went to the Dr today for a check up, guess I was off on my 20 week mark by a week or two... But not the 20 lbs LOL."*

Our source revealed, "Kim is putting on a brave face and talking up how much she loves being pregnant, but behind closed doors, she's stewing. No one can imagine how jealous she is of Kendall. She's always wanted that type of slender, tall, elegant body her younger half-sister has. When Kim saw Kendall's snap of her posing in a bikini by a pool, Kim got a little catty. She told Kendall she looks too thin and urged her to eat more protein and high-fat foods."

The fact that Kendall, 19, does little to maintain her figure is also a bugbear for Kim. Just last month, the superslim model admitted she hadn't worked out for over four weeks. However, Kim revealed

KIM PANNE FOR DRUG PLUG! The star's promo sparks a backlash online...

Kim Kardashian came under fire last week when she urged other mums-to-be to take a prescription drug to beat their morning sickness.

Despite Kim claiming the Diclegis pills had been "studied", her followers on Instagram weren't so convinced. One wrote, "This could still be dangerous to the baby! Study this first!" Another added, "I can't imagine any long term studies on this drug: ( and what pregnant mom would what to take part in this drug??"

We contacted the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency, which told new! that such actions wouldn't be tolerated in the UK. "It is against the law for anybody to advertise prescription-only medicines to the public in the UK," a spokesperson said. "This is because they need to be taken under the supervision of a medical professional such as a GP."

Kim, who is around 20 weeks pregnant with her and Kanye West's second baby, has made no secret of her morning sickness.

In June, she tweeted, "Wait wait wait I thought this nausea thing was supposed to be gone by now!!!! UGHHHHH," and said, "To be honest, I've had really bad morning sickness, day sickness, night sickness. I can barely get out of bed."

Now you've really got something to feel sick about, haven't you, Kim!

Kim was slated for promoting Diclegis to Spanish Vogue she had to train every day, saying, "The shape of my body isn't naturally slim," which of course will only become more difficult as she moves further into her pregnancy.

It's clearly Kendall who brings out Kim's insecurities the most. Earlier this year, Kim said she would "love to swap bodies with Kendall for a week... to look from that little bit higher up and fit into everything perfectly".

And while our source told us Kim is ultimately "super proud" of everything Kendall has achieved, they added, "That doesn't negate how envious Kim is of Kendall's youthful beauty and success."

Kim's lack of body confidence isn't new. After daughter North's birth in 2013, she vowed never to get pregnant again – "I got huge and it felt like someone had taken over my body," she complained – and in June this year, Kim said her maternity wardrobe would consist of light coats to conceal her "big arms".

The brunette even admitted to sometimes wearing two pairs of Spanx to appear slimmer and, on seeing snaps from her photo shoot with Spanish Vogue, her first concern was that she didn't look "fat". Er, we still think you look great, Kim!

Kourtney 'betrayed' by Khloé!

The sisters fall out after Khloé refuses to cut ties with Scott Disick...

KOURTNEY KARDASHIAN MAY HAVE DUMPED SCOTT DISICK, but her ex is still managing to cause her heartbreak.

The mum-of-three is said to be furious with her sister Khloé after she discovered her younger sibling is still in touch with her former partner.

Sources claim Khloé, 31, has been calling Scott every day – despite Kourtney, 36, dumping him earlier this month after seeing pictures of him getting cosy with his ex, Chloé Bartoli.

An insider told new!, "Kourt feels betrayed. Khloé is like, 'He is the father of your kids. I'm trying to make sure he doesn't go more mental than he is.'"

But Khloé's words are falling on deaf ears, as Kourtney thinks her sister's loyalty should lie with her – especially as she was a pillar of support for Khloé during her marriage breakdown with Lamar Odom back in 2013.

The pal added, "Kourtney said, 'I didn't call your ex every day

Kourtney looked downcast in LA last Monday

Khloé shared a video of herself with Penelope when we all found out he was a drug addict sleeping around!' It's a mess. She feels nothing should trump sisterly alliance. Why is her sister allying with her ex? It's driving Kourt crazy."

Despite the drama between the siblings, Khloé continued to play the role of doting aunt last week, posting an adorable video of herself with her niece Penelope on Instagram.

And Khloé no doubt came up in conversation when Scott and Kourtney reunited for the first time since their split last Thursday.

The former couple arrived separately at the Beverly Hills Hotel where they had lunch with their children, Mason, five, Penelope, three, and seven-month-old Reign. A source said, "They were deep in conversation and very serious."

The following day Scott was spotted close to his home with Mason. At least he and Kourtney are keeping things amicable for the kids!

Cheryl's concern for 'unhappy' JB!

The X Factor judge proves she's still head over heels for her hubby...

CHERYL FERNANDEZ-VERSINI AND HER HUSBAND JEAN BERNARD have been pretty much inseparable since tying the knot last July. But with the X Factor auditions in full swing, fans are concerned the Frenchman is struggling with Cheryl's new workload, with one even commenting that he looks "unhappy".

Cheryl, 32, is also worried about her man's feelings – and keen to prove to him that they're still as strong as ever. The former Girls Aloud singer took to Instagram to post a picture of her spectacular Sophia Webster shoes, featuring heels made from little hearts and the words "wifey for lifey" scrawled on the soles. If that's not a sign of reassurance, we don't know what is!

However, two days later, her show of support was overshadowed when JB appeared to respond negatively to a video of Cheryl in a clinch with fellow judge Nick Grimshaw. After viewing the clip, in which Grimmy picks Cheryl up, cupping her bum, JB wrote on Instagram, "Jimmy the grym you very funny and strong after all those house in the gym but remember her ass is mine. ** Eek!

With Cheryl focusing on her day job, no one could blame JB, 34, for feeling lonely. He even posted a picture of himself in a bar with ex-JLS star Marvin Humes, 30, whose wife Rochelle, 26, is co-presenting The Xtra Factor. He wrote, "When a business man meets a DJ @marvinhumes guess what the topic of the conversation is? Their wife!" The glum picture prompted followers to speculate he's missing Cheryl. One said, "Awww you don't look happy at all without ur wives."

It's clear the long hours are already taking their toll on Cheryl. Shortly before co-judge Rita Ora complained of their "16 hour day", Chez shared a snap of herself with her eyes closed and commented, "#Mood #asleep on my feet #xfauditions."

Meanwhile, JB, who's always the first to defend his wife, may well have had his nose put out of joint by Simon Cowell last week when the X Factor boss waded into the debate regarding Cheryl's weight.

Simon, 55, said Cheryl "eats like a horse", adding, "This is not someone who's trying to make herself thin. I think she did pick up a bug and I think the way she's approaching what was addressed about her weight in a very open way – by saying she is thin and trying to put on weight – is great."

Jordan's fury as Kieran's ex taunts her

Kieran's former lover causes a stir online as she posts a cryptic tweet...

WHEN IT COMES TO CAUSING A STIR ON SOCIAL MEDIA,

Jordan takes the crown. But the notoriously cryptic tweeter was given a taste of her own medicine last week when her husband Kieran Hayler's ex, Laura Summers, told fans she'd been contacted by an old boyfriend.

Ex On The Beach star Laura, 30, tweeted, "Just had a ex boyfriend contact me after seeing the TV advert for #ExOnTheBeach3 there all crawling out the wood work now #toofunny."

Hours later, she followed it with a post that read, "Don't feel sad over someone who gave up on you, feel sorry for them because they gave up on someone who would have never given up on them."

The former glamour model's messages are bound to have been humiliating for Katie, 37, as people may believe Laura was talking about Kieran. Laura's agent wouldn't give new! the mystery ex's identity when approached last week.

It isn't the first time Laura has taunted Jordan. She has already promised to reveal a "secret" when she appears on the reality show next month, and last year she spoke openly to new! about her three-month relationship with Kieran in 2012, describing their chemistry as "ridiculous".

Was Laura's tweet (below) about her ex, Kieran?

Laura-Alicia @MissLauraAlicia 2011

there all crawling out the wood work now #toofunny

In the days leading up to Laura's tweets, Katie tried to prove she was still the queen of mystery by poking fun at her ongoing spat with footballer Joe Hart and his wife Kimberly Crew.

Tweeting a comedian with the same name as the sportsman, she wrote, "Hey @JoeHart I'm hearing good things and can't wait to come and watch you xx." Hours later, she wrote, "@JoeHart check you out in this picture in 2011 when you helped doing my kpequestrian stands."

Joe, who is believed to be the son of Katie's business partner, responded to the picture with, "@MissKatiePrice I look so young there! Can't believe it's been almost 5 years!" He then joked, "All publicity is good publicity, right?"

Katie's feud with Joe and Kimberly began last month when, hours after they wed, she tweeted, "All Harts go out to the married couple is he going to tell her the truth about us xx."

Kimberly reportedly hit back, calling Katie a "clueless bimbo". Miao!

JORDAN'S BOOB SCAR

Katie Price showed off the scarring from her seventh boob job in a plunging pink catsuit last week.

The star went from a B-cup to a 32DD earlier this year following the removal of her old implants last November.

In February last year, she spoke about the scarring left from a previous op, saying, "Despite rumours, I'm not planning more surgery – my body already looks like a patchwork quilt with scars under my boobs and from my caesarean."

But months later the mum-of-five appeared more accepting of her scars, saying, "Luckily it doesn't bother me because I heal really well but people have got to remember that if you're going to have a procedure, sometimes it can go wrong and it will leave you with scars."

Jordan's scar was visible at an event last week

Michelle told: 'Mark is an embarrassment!'

The actress is pitted by fans after her husband, Mark Wright, brings up his ex – yet again!

IT SHOULD BE THE HAPPIEST TIME OF NEWLYWED MICHELLE KEEGAN'S LIFE, but it looks like the honeymoon period is already over for her and hubby Mark Wright.

Last week, the actress, 28, had to face the embarrassment of Mark speaking out about his ex-fiancée, Lauren Goodger, for the second time since they wed on May 24.

The former TOWIE hunk, 28, stuck the knife into our columnist as he slammed her for defending herself against claims she planned to disrupt their nuptials. He said, "When I've been asked about my past I don't comment, so I don't see how hard that is for someone to do... Even explaining in a column that certain stories are lies, it's still talking about it."

Mark's outburst led fans to call him a "hypocrite" for telling Lauren to keep schtum over their relationship, only to talk about it himself.

"What an idiot. I'd be embarrassed to call this man my husband," one said. Another added, "Is he still going on about Lauren?! If my husband was constantly ranting about his ex I'd be annoyed with him not the ex. If he's so happy whys he even bothered? Yawn." A third simply said, "If I was Michelle I'd be embarrassed."

Ironically, Mark branded Lauren "embarrassing" in a series of tweets he posted during his honeymoon in Dubai last month. He wrote, "If your reading this, please PLEASE respect my wife and STOP. Everyone has a past, get over it!" adding, "I wish you well but leave me, my life and my wife out of it. Im sure there is other ways to make money."

Last week, Mark attempted to justify his tweets. "I feel like a bit of a mug if I don't say anything back," he said. "I had to stand up for myself and my wife and beg her to stop. I hope she'd now feel silly to try again."

Although he's tried to dismiss their ten-year relationship, he's clearly kept an eye on what Lauren's been up to. "After tweets, columns, interviews and having a picture with someone with the same name as me [she shared a snap of her and Apprentice winner Mark Wright] and tweeting it..." he said.

Lauren appeared to hit back last week by retweeting a message of support from a fan, which read, "God @LaurenGoodger literally gets slated for EVERYTHING she does! poor girl cant do nout without gettin abuse hurled at her! #welliloveyou."

Proving she had moved on, she also shared a snap of herself and boyfriend Jake McLean, writing, "Lovely Sunday out with my Bubs."

MICHELLE'S OUTRAGE OVER FAN ATTACK

Michelle Keegan has offered her condolences to a fan who was left badly wounded in a mystery attack after he posed for a selfie with Mark Wright in Magaluf last week. At first, Tom Grundon claimed it was Mark's personal bodyguard who "punched and stamped" on him during Mark's DJ set at Boomerang nightclub, and told Mark and Michelle via Twitter, "You have an awful lot to answer for." But Mark denied the pair had personal security and Michelle wrote, "My thoughts go out to @TomGrundon and his family today, absolutely disgusting what happened, shocking & barbaric. Wishing u a full recovery. X"

Chantelle loses her diet battle

The mum-of-one sees her weight creep up as she gains 7lbs in just a few weeks...

HER WEIGHT HAS DRAMATICALLY FLUCTUATED OVER THE YEARS, but

Chantelle Houghton has piled on the pounds since reaching her ideal weight of 9st 8lbs in June.

The 5ft 6in reality star, 31, stepped out last week looking curvier than she has in months and clutching two McDonald's bags – suggesting she's ditched her strict diet and exercise regime and reverted back to old junk food habits.

Nutritionist Angela Dowden told new!, "Looking at Chantelle, I'd say she's put on 7lbs. You can see her arms and legs haven't changed much but there are wobbles around the middle. That's where she's put it on. She puts it on in one place, rather than all over, so you tend to notice it more."

Earlier this month, Chantelle went on holiday to Spain and revealed she "didn't stick too rigidly" to her diet plan, which she began last November after seeing unflattering pictures of herself shopping in Essex.

The mortified star, who then tipped the scales at 12st, told new! at the time,

"I look a right mess," and referred to herself as "Chantelle Four Bellies".

She vowed to slim down from a size 14-16 to a 10.

But clearly the committed vegetarian has relaxed her regime even more since returning home to Blighty.

Dressed casually in summer sandals and a pair of white patterned trousers, the mum-of-one's stomach was visible through her navy vest top. She hid her face behind a pair of sunglasses while balancing the two McDonald's bags, two soft drinks and a Starbucks beverage in her arms.

Chantelle was bikini ready after going to boot camp

She was spotted carrying two McDonald's bags, two soft drinks and a Starbucks beverage

Chantelle looked like she'd gained a few pounds as she stepped out last week

'SHE PUTS WEIGHT ON IN ONE PLACE SO YOU TEND TO NOTICE IT MORE'

Chantelle's appearance is a far cry from the way she looked in May, when she revealed her delight at slimming down to 9st 11lbs, after attending an intensive boot camp in April.

"I don't look perfect, but I'm definitely much more confident in my bikini. I didn't want to put one on before," she told us. "I've still got work to do, but now I've kick-started it, I'm determined to carry on."

So she is sure to feel upset that she's let her hard work slide, especially considering she blamed her previous weight gain on fatty foods and takeaways. Back in March she said, "I'd feel disgusted. I felt so horrible. I'd cry and there were so many times I'd get upset because I felt frustrated with myself. I knew it was my fault for getting that pizza and putting it in my mouth. If I hadn't done that, I wouldn't have got to 12st. They were tears of frustration."

Chantelle has been open about her weight struggles since her daughter Dolly – whose dad is Alex Reid – was born in June 2012, and this marks another setback.

It's likely the former Big Brother star will be gutted to have slipped up, but knowing Chantelle, she'll be back on her healthy eating mission again soon!

Myleene's fresh fears over ex

The presenter is “in bits” after her former hubby brands her “a liar”

MYLEENE KLOSS IS AT “BREAKING POINT” AFTER GETTING EMBROILED IN A BITTER WAR OF WORDS with her ex-husband Graham Quinn.

Sources have told new! that mum-of-two Myleene, 37, is “distraught” after Graham publicly slated her just days before her huge prime-time TV return on ITV show BBQ Champ this week.

According to our insider, the star is now panicking about how far he’ll go to smear her name in what should be the most exciting time of her career.

A pal revealed, “There have been lots of tears. She’s veering between being defiant and getting very upset.”

The war of words between the exes erupted when Myleene said she was wrong not to have signed a pre-nup before they wed in 2012.

She said, “That was as stupid as it gets. One of my girlfriends said later, ‘You married a former drug dealer who wouldn’t sign a pre-nup. What were you thinking?’ I’ll never let that happen again, so help me God. If I’d decided to gamble with my money, I could take that, but someone taking it? No.”

But Graham hit back in a Twitter post, saying, “Thankyou for once again slandering my name in the papers to promote yourself, it’s frankly embarrassing and complete lies...”* He added, “I’ve stayed quiet for three years now but enough is enough. Please explain to me how I took your money?”

He added, “I lost so much money from our divorce and our house that we bought together...”

Our insider said Gray’s outburst couldn’t have come at a worse time. “It’s certainly not good for her career if the ex starts selling negative stories,” they said. “It’s a nightmare for Myleene that this comes up just as she’s back in the spotlight with her new show. It’s a good job that she’s out of the country, so she can get her head together.”

Myleene put on a brave face last week in a series of holiday snaps she shared of her and her daughters on Instagram. But our insider claimed it’s just a front.

“She’s devastated and in bits about it,” said our source. “This is her worst nightmare. She was totally wiped out when Gray left and took a long time to pick herself up.”

In another interview, Myleene opened up about the heartache she suffered when Graham walked out on her six months after they married in 2012. She said, “I thought I’d never smile or trust anyone ever again. I felt so betrayed and so crushed.”

Myleene put on a brave face in a series of holiday snaps

The pair split in 2012, six months after their wedding

Graham lashed out on Twitter, accusing Myleene of “slandering” him

“You imagine other people have the same values as you. I wouldn’t walk out on my family. I’ve got so much pride – I wouldn’t take anything from anyone. I certainly wouldn’t take a family home. But I couldn’t wallow in it and sob.”

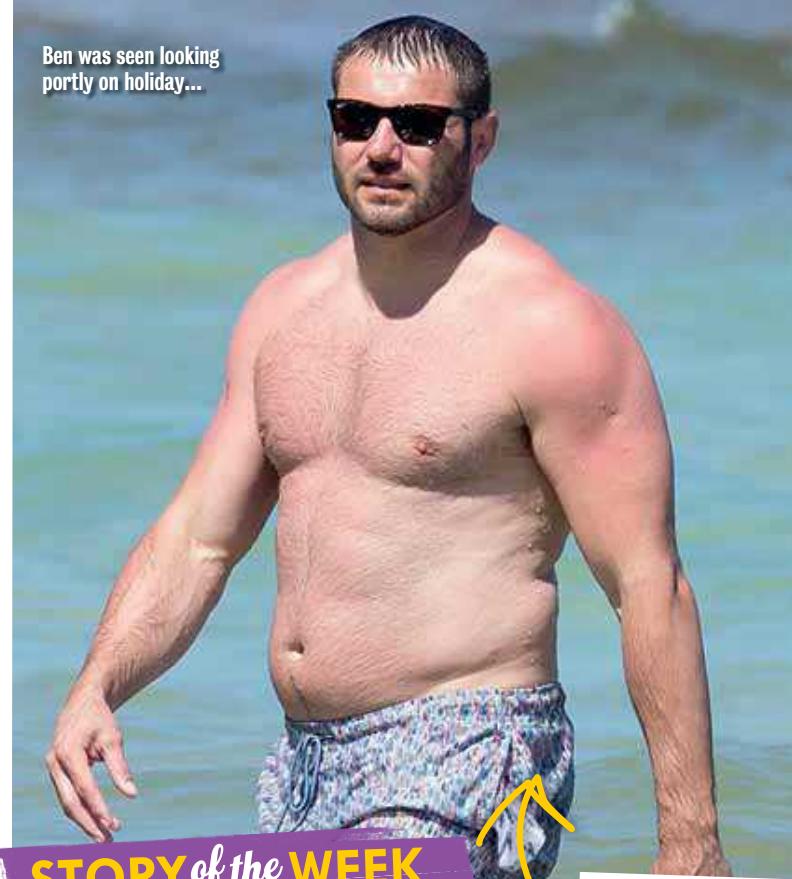

She added, “Now I look back and think it was the best thing that could have happened to me. Don’t get me wrong, I’ll never speak to him again and I’m not thankful that it happened to be, but I’m not a grudge-bearer.”

STORY of the WEEK

Ben battles the bulge...

...while his girlfriend Kristina faces the wrath of his estranged wife Abby

...compared to his previous toned look

BEN COHEN HAS ADMITTED HE NEEDS "TO GET BACK INTO SHAPE" after he was snapped flaunting what looked like the start of a beer belly in Miami last week.

The former rugby star, 36, took to Twitter to bemoan his figure, saying, "Eaten way to many burgers. Or maybe it was just the camera angle."

The photos appeared days after it was claimed he told his wife Abby that he and his ex-Strictly partner Kristina Rihanoff are dating – which they had previously denied. But as Ben was getting stuck into workouts in Florida with his pal, swimwear designer Melissa Odabash, Abby was in Egypt with their twins, Harriette and Isabelle, seven. She has now reportedly filed for a "quickie divorce".

On July 14, Abby, 36, caused a stir when she attacked Kristina, 37, in a tweet about karma. She posted the message soon after Ben and Kristina took the twins on a family day out, writing, "@Krihanoff there you go my lovely..." and attached a picture of a quote that read, "When a bird is alive, it eats ants. When the bird is dead, ants eat the bird... One tree makes a million match sticks... Only one match stick needed to burn a million trees... So be good and do good."

After being called "pathetic" by a fan, Abby said, "If you knew the truth you wouldn't write that!" Earlier, she'd tweeted Ben's former Strictly co-star Abbey Clancy, who'd shared a pic of her baby Liberty Rose. Abby wrote, "Precious family... Keep it safe and secure as mine totally ruined."

Kristina, who denied she was to blame for the marriage breakdown after she was partnered with Ben in the 2013 series, later branded Twitter trolls who backed Abby "pathetic".

With Kristina's autobiography out in the autumn, we can't see this feud simmering down any time soon!

LUCY MECKLENBURGH

‘Lucy’s diet is unrealistic’

SHE’S CARVED A CAREER OUT OF BEING strong not skinny, but last week Lucy Mecklenburgh worried fans when she uploaded a snap of herself looking noticeably slimmer – as well as a picture of a barely-there dinner.

The ex-TOWIE star, 23, who runs her own exercise website, Results With Lucy, posted a picture of herself in a pink dress that showed off her slender frame. She also uploaded a gym selfie in which her waist looked tiny. One fan responded, “Far too skinny! That’s not fit, that’s just diet skinny.”

Lucy caused further concern by sharing a shot of her dinner, which consisted of fish, cucumber and spinach. She captioned it, “Started a new fitness & nutrition programme! Only allowed protein & anything green!!!!*

But her fans weren’t impressed. One wrote, “Ridiculous im starving just looking at it,” while another added, “You are close to being way to skinny anyway!! Literally you don’t need to restrict yourself more! You are gorgeous and strong as is!!”

Fitness expert Laura Williams, from Laurawilliamsonline.co.uk, told new! that 5ft 6in Lucy’s harsh diet is unrealistic for most of us. She said, “Daily workouts and a low-carb, high-protein diet aren’t achievable for most people. Vegetables with meat or fish is pretty healthy but quite dull too if that’s all you have. It’s an unrealistic way to live for anyone who doesn’t have the incentive of being papped every time they leave the house.”

Last week, Lucy addressed the comments, saying, “I’m criticised over the way I look all the time – on Twitter, people have claimed I’m too skinny in the past.” But she’s had support from her former TOWIE pal Amy Childs, who told us, “She puts a lot of work in at the gym and looks really toned. I also put a lot of work in at the gym but I’ll never have a body like Lucy’s. I’m much curvier, but still toned.”

KATHERINE KELLY

‘New mums shouldn’t expect to look like her’

MUM-OF-ONE KATHERINE KELLY HAS DEFENDED HER SLIM FIGURE FOR YEARS – in 2009 she explained to new! it was “definitely genetic”. But last week the 5ft 7in Mr Selfridge actress stepped out looking slimmer than ever, despite giving birth to her daughter Orla – her first child with hubby Ryan Clark – just 16 months ago.

Our expert explained Katherine’s trim figure is helped by the fact she didn’t gain much weight during her pregnancy, but warned other mums shouldn’t expect similar results.

She said, “Mums-to-be who may be motivated by slim celeb mums shouldn’t rush to shed their baby weight too quickly after the birth. A strenuous exercise regime combined with calorie restriction just isn’t compatible with coping with the demands of a newborn.”

Donna looked tiny as she headed to the gym last week

DONNA AIR

'She looks delicate'

WITH HER HAIR SCRAPED BACK, DONNA AIR WAS ALMOST unrecognisable as she headed to the gym last week.

The 5ft 10in former actress, who's dating the Duchess of Cambridge's brother James Middleton, was dressed down in jeans and a tee, but her tiny frame concerned our expert.

"Donna does look a little on the delicate side," Laura told us. "I would guess her weight is around 9st max, which is a bit on the low side for someone of her height. She's clearly very busy and active and has said before she likes running and regular gym sessions, so all these factors combined would explain her appearance."

However, last year Donna, 35, insisted she was "not a big gym person", and claimed she ate plenty. "Sometimes I don't exercise at all," she said, adding, "Sometimes I eat healthily and sometimes I eat lots of ice cream and brownies... I eat out in restaurants a bit too much."

Fans are concerned Tulisa's taken her weight loss too far

TULISA*8ST

'She shouldn't lose more weight'

WHEN TULISA WAS ARRESTED ON SUSPICION OF SUPPLYING CLASS A DRUGS in 2013 – a charge that was promptly dropped – she threw herself into an intense fitness regime as a distraction. And judging by her petite figure last week, not to mention her recent post-gym selfie, the 5ft 6in star hasn't slowed down.

Tulisa, 27, sparked concern at the Little Mix Black Party in London, where she showcased her tiny frame in a tight red dress. One fan wrote, "Is it me or is Tulisa looking a bit on the skinny side!!!!" Now expert Laura, who says Tulisa is just over 8st, has warned her not to go too far with her weight loss.

She told us, "While I think Tulisa looks healthy, it would be a shame for her to compromise that muscle tone and the curve she has retained by shedding more weight."

Last year, Tulisa revealed she'd become "obsessed" with exercising daily. She said, "I'm working out every day to hone my figure."

Heidi's ribs were protruding during a holiday last week

HEIDI KLUM 'Heidi has a low body weight'

HEIDI KLUM SHOWCASED THE BENEFITS OF HER HEALTHY LIFESTYLE LAST WEEK as she holidayed in Saint-Tropez with her man, Vito Schnabel. But Laura is concerned that the naturally slim model may be taking her exercise regime too far.

She told new!, "Heidi's between 8 and 8½st, which is quite a low body weight for her height. Her prominent ribs and collarbone would imply low body fat levels. Heidi doesn't look unhealthy but my concern is what she has to do to maintain such a low body weight."

"Even when blessed with 'good genes' with a long, slim naturally athletic build, Heidi would have to work hard and exercise tremendous discipline around food to maintain that shape, which must be tough as a mum-of-four with a very demanding career."

In the past, 42-year-old Heidi has admitted her metabolism has changed since hitting 40. She said, "If I indulge more, I have to exercise more." She also said she avoided processed carbs.

Pete opens up about his perfect honeymoon and defends dad dancing...

BACK TO REALITY

Ems and I had a lovely time on our honeymoon last week. We were in the Med, travelling from place to place on a boat. It was just "wow" and the weather was perfect.

It was hard being away from Mills, Junior and Princess but, when we did get 4G, FaceTime was a lifesaver!

The second part of our honeymoon will be later in the year because Ems had to go back to work this week and I'm back in the recording studio.

While we were away, the company that filmed our wedding, High Head Productions, sent us a ten-minute teaser of our special day. I never thought anyone could film a wedding so well and we can't wait to see all the footage in a few weeks' time – I'd love to share a snippet on Instagram.

By the way, you see the beautiful wedding cake in the photo opposite? It tasted incredible. We'd love to thank Jenny Wells from Edible Essence Cake Art for making it.

DANCEFLOOR DAD

Dad dancing has topped the list of the ten ways parents embarrass their children the most – and I'm not surprised! My kids love my dancing on stage, but if I start doing it in the house they roll their eyes in pure disapproval. I have to confess though, there might have been a couple of dad moves at our wedding, but they didn't come out until late into the night!

NOT ANOTHER BAN!

Brighton could become the first UK city to ban smoking on the beach. If they do, I think they'll be going a step too far. I'm not a smoker myself, but a beach is an open, public place and as long as smokers are mindful of other people, I don't see the need to ban it. Sure, I understand why it's banned in restaurants and bars... but beaches! Really?

DOCTOR IN DISTRESS

Embarrassing Bodies' Dr Christian Jessen has defended himself for messaging a man on a gay dating app and suggesting he join him and his partner at his flat. He also appeared to imply they could take drugs together. Since the story blew up, Dr Christian has said he feels "a bit silly" and insists nothing happened. I don't know the guy, but there are lots of people who are embarrassed about things they've said or done in the past! Let's take a chill pill.

BROTHERLY LOVE

I had so much fun catching up with the Blue lads at the Rochester Castle concert recently. I was headlining and Junior and I caught up with Duncan, Lee, Simon and Antony backstage. We get on so well – they're like brothers to me – and whenever we meet up, it's hugs all round. I had such a great time. Can you tell from this pic of me, Junior and the boys?

NO MORE WHITE WEDDINGS?

Apparently, the traditional "white wedding" is becoming a thing of the past, with fewer than a third of ceremonies now taking place in a church. I think the reason for this is because more and more people from different cultures and different religious backgrounds are marrying each other – which is beautiful! Unless both parties are from the same religion, I guess it's difficult.

"I feel pressure to look good"

Peter Andre tells us he has to maintain his body so he doesn't look like he's "had it"...

INTERVIEW Olivia Adams

Peter Andre has experienced some serious highs and lows recently. The star married his stunning fiancée Emily MacDonagh on July 11 in a lavish ceremony, but had to postpone their honeymoon to provide evidence in a court case involving his ex-wife Katie Price. Talk about bad timing!

But that's not all. Pete, who shares custody of his son Junior, ten, and daughter Princess, eight, with Katie, has also gone straight back to work, performing at two festivals and fronting Iceland's Christmas event.

We head down to the supermarket chain's festive food launch – yes, in July! – where Pete, dressed in a dark fitted blazer and jeans, is mingling with guests. Despite the turbulent start to his married life, he is the perfect host and warmly invites us to have a chat with him.

Looking bronzed and slim, Pete certainly doesn't look his 42 years and when we tell him this, he tells us he works out so he doesn't look like he's "had it". Far from it, his recent gym selfies are anything to go by.

The singer, who has an 18-month-old daughter, Amelia, with Emily, 25, also reveals his date night secrets and why he is the better cook in the Andre household...

Hi Pete! You're looking in good nick. Is that why you posted some topless Instagram pics recently?

[Smiles] Those two photos were the first! It's rare that I'll do that kind of selfie, but it was pre-wedding and I felt good. I was pumped!

What's your current workout plan?

I sprint, then walk and repeat. I hadn't done it for years and I just shrunk.

Is there any part of your body you're focusing on improving?

I've worked out what works for me – I just eat less. It's hard to do sometimes because I love food. I've just had a spoonful of cheesecake and I could have eaten half of it!

Are you strict with your diet?

I generally eat what I want. I don't like diets. I'll just cut down the amount that I eat.

Do you feel pressure to look good?

Yeah, I'm 42 and I don't want to look like I've had it. I want to still be able to play footie with the kids... And I want to look good in a suit. It's important.

Do you work out with Emily?

No, I like working out on my own. If anyone is in the gym with me it's Mills. She dances to MTV while I run. She's so cute.

What do you like doing for date nights?

I like cooking. I always used to go to restaurants but now it's a great feeling trying new dishes at home.

Emily's had a full day at work. What would you cook to impress her?

I love doing linguine and scallops with a creamy, tomato-based sauce. Emily likes it.

Who's the better cook?

Me! She's a great cook, but she doesn't have the confidence. I cook a variety of food that she's too scared to do. So we've done a deal. I cook, she cleans – it's awesome.

What would you choose to eat for your last dinner on Earth?

I'm going to Macker's [McDonald's] and having three cheeseburgers, a Filet-O-Fish, two large fries, a Diet Coke and an apple pie. Then you can take me away.

Gino D'Acampo, 39, was filming Gino's Italian Escape in Sardinia when Pete married Emily. But he told us, "Emily looked amazing. She's too beautiful for him, and I told him that. He's a lucky man."

Gino was "disappointed" to have work commitments and said Pete told him he'd missed "a brilliant day".

Perrie & Jesy's wedding wars!

After her bandmate's surprise engagement, Perrie Edwards is keen to tie the knot...

PERRIE EDWARDS IS UNDER MOUNTING PRESSURE TO TIE THE KNOT WITH long-time fiancé Zayn Malik following her pal Jesy Nelson's recent engagement.

Although the singer has been engaged to Zayn since 2013, they have so far failed to set a date for their big day. But she's now keen to prioritise her nuptials, especially after Jesy's future mother-in-law, Loose Women star Coleen Nolan, said last week that Jesy would be "getting straight on to it" and will marry "in the next year or two".

Jesy, 24, was left speechless last week when her boyfriend, Rixton's Jake Roche, popped the question on stage at the Manchester Arena – serenaded by Ed Sheeran, no less.

"I cannot believe what has just happened! The most surreal moment of my life and everyone that I love most was there to share it with us!" she tweeted after the event, adding, "I feel like the luckiest girl in the world right now literally cannot stop crying! Future Mrs Roche."*

With Jesy now expected to throw herself into wedding preparations, pals say Perrie, 22, is upping her game in a bid to beat her pal to the altar. An insider told new!, "Perrie is pestering Zayn as she's determined to walk down the aisle before Jesy. Now that Jesy is getting married too the race is on. Perrie doesn't want to be left behind."

Despite Perrie getting a two-year head start on Jesy, her commitments with Little Mix seem to have got in the way of her saying "I do". In May – following Zayn's decision to quit One Direction after he was pictured holding hands with Love Island star Lauren Richardson in Thailand – Perrie admitted she'd been too "busy" to plan her big day.

"I don't know when the wedding will be," she said. "We're still planning it but I'm so busy... Me and Zayn want it to be perfect, so as soon as I have a bit of time we'll plan it. I doubt it will be this summer, I'll let you know."

But with Jesy now flashing a huge sparkler, it's thought Perrie has changed her tune. "With all the fuss surrounding Jesy, Perrie is now telling Zayn to get a move on. Seeing Jesy so happy has made her rethink things. Now she can't wait to be a bride," our insider added.

Earlier this month, Zayn and Perrie reportedly spent a whopping £3 million on a six-bedroom love nest just outside London, sparking rumours their big day was imminent. But it seems it's the prospect of her bandmate Jesy tying the knot that finally gets the wedding wheels in motion for the couple.

Let the race to the altar begin!

I'll always be there for Cheryl

Kimberley Walsh talks to new! about supporting her former bandmates and losing her baby weight...

INTERVIEW Olivia Adams

Kimberley Walsh is relishing life as a domestic goddess. It's a far cry from her wild showbiz partying days with Girls Aloud, but the mum of one can't get enough of changing nappies and quiet nights in front of the telly – which is ideal as her best pal Cheryl Fernandez-Versini will soon be back on screen as an X Factor judge!

But the "tame" evenings haven't dulled Kimberley's sparkle – in fact, she recently dyed her hair bubblegum pink! And when we catch up with her, the 33-year-old star is warm and chatty.

Kimberley, who's engaged to long-term partner Justin Scott, 32, has always been proud of her curves. But ten months after the birth of their son, Bobby, she's looking fab and trim, telling us she lost the baby weight gradually and didn't "obsess".

Her pal Cheryl, 32, recently hit headlines after she was spotted looking worryingly thin at an X Factor audition, but Kimberley refuses to comment on it, instead explaining that she sympathises with Cheryl's tiring schedule.

Here, the 2012 Strictly finalist also discusses having more babies, wedding planning and persuading her former bandmate Nicola Roberts, 29, to sign up for Strictly...

Kimberley and Justin may wed next year

Cheryl, Kimberley and Nicola are still close friends

Hi Kimberley. You look great. How are you feeling about your body?

I'm working out more because Bobby's getting older, so I get more sleep and have more energy to think about working out. I've lost the weight really gradually. I haven't obsessed, so that's good.

When would you like to have more children?

Maybe in another year I'll be ready to go again [laughs]! I'd like there not to be a huge gap between them, but I've still got my hands full.

It took Justin ten years to pop the question. How long will the engagement last?

Hopefully it won't be another ten years! Justin wants to get married quite quickly – maybe next year we will.

How different is your life now compared to the days of Girls Aloud?

It's definitely not quite as crazy. It would have been hard to have a child in Girls Aloud. I would have felt torn between not wanting to let the girls down and being a good mum, but now he can be the priority.

Cheryl is still very much involved in showbiz – what do you make of the new X Factor panel?

It's really good. Nicola and I went to the auditions the other day and the dynamic was brilliant. I love Nick Grimshaw.

The star has her hands full with Bobby

Do you think it's the best line-up to date?

I hope so! Every year you want it to be better than the last.

Cheryl's said she's tired – do you sympathise with that from your time on Strictly?

Yeah. Big shows consume you and for that short time it's really intense. Cheryl's like me, she gets her head down and works hard. It looks glamorous and easy but they do work really hard.

Concerns have been raised that Cheryl's too skinny, what do you think?

I'm not commenting. It's nothing to do with me. Would you help out at judges' houses if Cheryl asked?

She knows I'll always be there to support her if she needs me. We'll see what happens.

Will you be tuning in to watch Sarah Harding on Coronation Street?

Definitely. I never used to be in, so I never got into soaps, but maybe now I am I should become a soap addict. I'm so excited to see Sarah. She'll fit in well.

Who'd be your dream contestant on Strictly?

I've said to Nicola she should do it, but I don't think she's up for it. She's too cool for Strictly but she's a really good dancer. Maybe I'll work on her!

Charlotte shows off her new curves!

CHARLOTTE CROSBY GOT INTO THE PARTY SPIRIT on holiday in Ibiza last week and onlookers couldn't help but notice she was looking curvier – and healthier – than she has in recent months.

The fitness-mad reality TV star looked fit and happy as she enjoyed the break, showcasing her new-look body in a one-piece swimsuit that highlighted her toned legs and slightly fuller figure.

Charlotte, 25, famously shed a massive 2st 7lbs in just six months last year, taking her from a size 16 to a size 8 and 8½st. But after posting a super-skinny bikini selfie in March, fans expressed concern that she had taken her weight loss too far.

She later addressed the drama by controversially hitting back, "I like being called too skinny. It's better than being called too fat!"

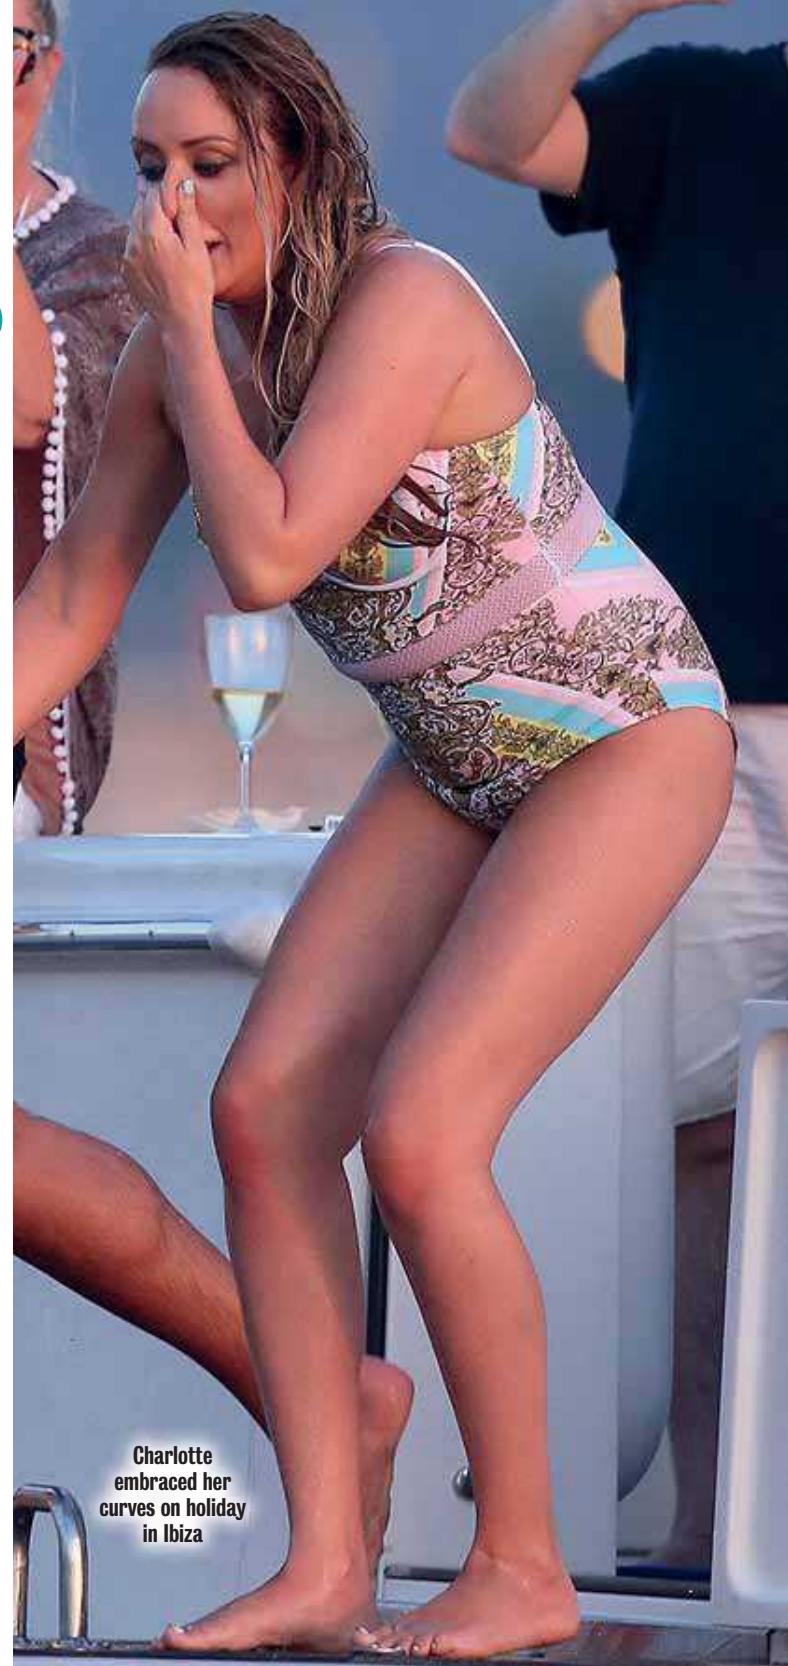

But last week, nutritionist Louise Sinniah-Burr told new! the 5ft 6in star actually looks healthier now she's gained a bit more weight.

"Charlotte was very small before, which was from her extreme exercise regime and reduced calorie approach," Louise explained. "Now she's at a much healthier body weight and has a female form. She's got some balance back and looks better."

Fitness expert Hannah Rees agrees, saying she believes Charlotte has put on a stone since the selfie. "I'd put her at a healthy 9st judging by these latest pics and estimate she was about 8st in the purple bikini," she said.

Last year, Charlotte felt she had "let herself go" and launched into a new healthy eating and fitness regime, which resulted in her best-selling DVD 3 Minute Belly Blitz.

"I saw pictures of myself on the beach in a bikini and I literally looked like the Michelin Man," she

Charlotte embraced her curves on holiday
in Ibiza

said earlier this year. "I felt so sad, just thinking about how I'd let myself go. That was the tipping point."

Charlotte, who is currently loved-up with boyfriend Mitch Jenkins, has had a busy schedule of late. She's been promoting her autobiography, Me Me Me, as well as wrapping up filming season 11 of Geordie Shore in Greece – which no doubt would have involved plenty of partying and unhealthy eating.

Charlotte has said before she has a weakness for alcohol and junk food, and vowed not to give it up.

In February she revealed, "I still drink, of course. You can't change your whole entire life because you've lost weight." She added, "I'll have McDonald's on a cheat day but I don't have it every day like I used to."

After arriving back from her holiday, the star shared a naked picture on Instagram with copies of her book covering her modesty to celebrate it topping the Sunday Times Best Seller List. We're glad to see that a few extra pounds won't stop Charlotte flashing the flesh!

Our columnist ditches her hair extensions and admits she "mothers" boyfriend Jake...

HE'S MY BABY

Here are some photos I posted of me enjoying a day out in London with Jake. We went shopping in Harrods then on to the Sanderson Hotel for drinks and dinner. And yes, that is a picture of me kissing Jake's foot. I treat him like my baby – I kiss his nose, his feet, his ears. He said he can't wait for us to have kids so I can mother them and give him a break, ha ha!

My make-under

I've had all my hair extensions taken out and gone au naturel. I've had extensions in for so long I wanted to give my hair a rest. It only takes me ten minutes to blow-dry now – it used to take an hour!

I've also had my fake nails taken off. I was sick of the typical Essex look. Jake loves the new me! He said all I need to do now is get rid of the make-up – he says I'm beautiful without it.

ON THE LOOKOUT

I was training in the park with Jake last week and apparently there was a guy sitting behind me, just watching me do squats. I didn't clock him, but Jake did and shouted over to him, "Oi! What are you doing, mate?!" The guy apologised, but he looked really embarrassed at being caught perving.

I felt a bit awkward, but on the way home Jake told me he felt bad for having a go. It's nice he looks out for me, though. He's never stopped me from going anywhere, wearing anything or doing anything I want, but he's very much like, "You're mine." He's very old-fashioned that way.

SOUND ADVICE

I shared this quote on Instagram last week, but don't worry, it's nothing to do with me and Jake. I've become a bit of an agony aunt for a couple of my friends who are going through a hard time with guys and life. They know I always give great advice.

When you're settled and happy in your own relationship, it's nice to help your mates. You can't control what a guy – or anyone – thinks of you, you can only control your own feelings.

Be w/ someone who will take care of you. Not materialistically, but take care of ur soul, ur well being, ur heart, & everything that's you.

JANICE FOR CBB!

I hear former I'm A Celebrity star Janice Dickinson is rumoured to be going into the CBB house when the new series starts next month. I think she'll be great! I met her four years ago – she's crazy, but very funny! We were on a shoot and she grabbed a piece of chicken and told me, "This is what you need to eat!"

Speaking of CBB, former winner Katie Price messaged me last week. It was good to hear from her and we're arranging a night out soon – hopefully!

Kate & Jamie 'heading for divorce'

After weeks of rumours their marriage is on the rocks, sources say it's now over

KATE MOSS AND JAMIE HINCE ARE "OVER AS A MARRIED COUPLE" and are "preparing to divorce", sources have claimed.

The pair, who have not been seen together since May, have reportedly called time on their marriage after four years.

A source said, "They are properly over as a married couple. Jamie's just waiting for Kate to move forward with divorce proceedings. Neither are in any hurry but they both suspect there won't be a reconciliation."

Kate and Jamie's agent wouldn't comment when approached by new! last week.

The supermodel, 41, and Jamie, 46, first faced rumours their marriage was in trouble following Jamie's solo trip to Glastonbury in June, where he partied with pals Lady Mary Charteris and her musician hubby Robbie Furze.

At the time, it was claimed the couple were "barely speaking to each other", something Jamie's pals denied. Further fuel was added when Kate was seen without her husband as she returned to London from a trip abroad on July 15. And on July 2, Jamie enjoyed a night out at London's Chiltern Firehouse while Kate was at Paris Fashion Week.

Sources said it was Kate's failure to accept Jamie's female friends that finally drove them apart. It was even claimed she once pushed Lady Mary into a swimming pool after seeing her chat to Jamie.

And Alison Mosshart, Jamie's Kills bandmate, apparently never approved of his relationship with Kate.

But those in Kate's camp told new! she was trying to save their marriage up until last week, and was planning a trip to Canada, where Jamie's on tour. "She was planning to surprise him," an insider said. "She also wanted them to have some time alone in a place they both love, so they could talk and get back to how things were when they first got together."

Sadly, this doesn't look likely now!

THEIR LOVE STORY IN PICS

We take a look at the key moments in their eight-year relationship...

2007 The couple are snapped at the launch of Kate's Topshop Christmas collection at Annabel's in London.

2009 They can't keep their hands off each other at a charity night in London.

2011

Kate and Jamie are happier than ever as they wed at St Peter's Church in Abingdon on July 1.

2012

They put on an amorous display during a holiday in St Barts.

2015

They are seen for the last time during a break in Rome at the end of May.

I wouldn't rule out Lauren as a girlfriend

TOWIE's Dan Edgar tells new! how "frustrating" it is that he can't freely date Lauren Pope...

He joined The Only Way Is Essex back in February as the hunky new eye candy who was single and ready to mingle. And it wasn't long before Dan Edgar, 25, had caught the eye of some of the show's ladies, including Jess Wright, 29. The pair began casually dating, but Jess broke it off at the end of the last series, saying she didn't want a relationship at the time.

Dan didn't seem too bothered, though, and recently began dating Lauren Pope, 32. But their fledgling relationship hasn't had a smooth run, with the girl pack, led by Jess, accusing Lauren of being disloyal and making her question whether she can continue dating Dan.

When we catch up with Dan at the In The Style summer party, hosted by none other than Lauren, he talks to us about how the girls' behaviour has affected the pair. As Dan proudly looks on, Lauren wows in a plunging yellow blazer and matching trousers, and he adds, "The last thing I want is for her to fall out with the girls. There was nothing really going on with Jess."

Here, Dan reveals his future hopes with Lauren and tells us people are starting to turn their backs on Gemma Collins for good as she continues to cause tensions in Essex...

Have you enjoyed filming this series of the show?

I've really enjoyed it. I feel a lot more comfortable, I've got more involved.

What is it that you like about Lauren?

I just get on really well with her. We have a laugh and I think we're quite similar people.

What first caught your eye about her?

Well, I hadn't properly spoken to her before Marbella. Then we all went out together one night, we had a good laugh and it just went from there.

What's your type?

Lauren is very different to Jess, but I wouldn't say I have a type – they can be blonde or brunette.

What do you make of the girls confronting Lauren over her dating you?

It's frustrating. It's been hard for us and it's not been nice for Lauren.

Dan with new!'s Olivia

Dan said there was nothing going on between him and Jess

INTERVIEW Olivia Adams

I feel bad for her. I don't mind if they're like that towards me, but the last thing I want is for her to fall out with them. It's annoying this has happened just because of Jess. There was nothing going on between us.

Are you surprised that it bothered Jess?

Massively. I think a lot of people were. She should have been more honest with me.

What did you make of Pete Wicks and Jess going out on a date?

It was a bit random, I could see from the beginning that it wasn't going to go anywhere.

What will happen with you and Lauren now?

We'll just see how it goes.

Do you want a girlfriend?

I wouldn't rule it out, but I wouldn't say I'm looking for anything too serious at the moment. I don't think Lauren is either.

What do you make of Danielle Armstrong and James Lock's split?

They've been together for a long time. They do bicker. I think they just need some time apart.

What do you make of Verity Chapman's explosive entrance on to the show?

She was just flirting with Lockie and she doesn't know any of the girls and their relationship history.

What about the claims Lockie wanted to take her to bed?

Lockie has got loads of banter. He's always terrorising people, winding them up. I didn't hear him say it, but if he did I think it would have been taken out of context. He would have been having a laugh. That's just how he is.

Dan and Lauren have decided to give things another go

'A lot of people are starting to turn against Gemma'

Have people turned against Gemma Collins since she fell out with Lauren, Vas J Morgan and Bobby Norris?

A lot of people are starting to. I feel sorry for Bobby, a lot of the time he doesn't want to get involved. I don't know if they'll ever sort it out between them.

Are you concerned about James Argent staying on the show when he's relapsed?

We all look out for him. I think it would be very hard to go out, be around everyone drinking and not drink yourself. I think he's doing really well. We'll continue to support him.

Demi was shocked a man died in her pool

Demi Moore has described the death of a 21-year-old man, who drowned in her pool, as an "unthinkable tragedy." The actress, 52, was "in shock" after learning Edenilson Steven Valle drowned after he slipped and fell into the pool during a party hosted by her assistant.

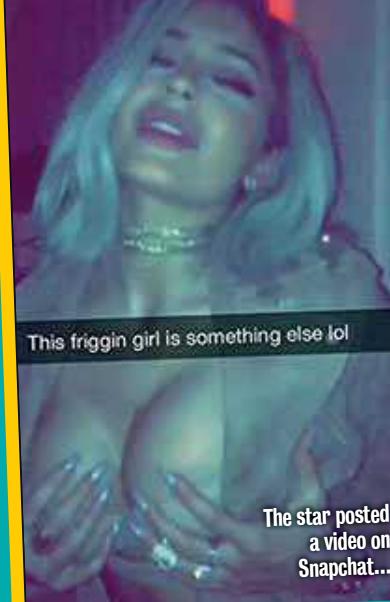

Demi was out of the country at the time of the incident.

Jungle Gemma... again!

OMG! Could Gemma Collins be making a return to the jungle? We hope so!

According to reports, the 34-year-old TOWIE star has been approached by ITV bosses to appear for a second time on I'm A Celebrity, which airs later this year. The reality TV star's previous stint on the show was famously a disaster – she sensationally quit after spending just 72 hours in the Australian jungle.

But show bosses obviously recognised she is TV gold and are said to be desperate to see how she might fare a second time. Gemma, who, according to reports, has turned down Celebrity Big Brother this year, hasn't ruled out a return to the jungle. Back in December, she said, "I'd love to go back and do it all again, if I was in the right head space."

KYLIE KAUSES KONTROVERSY!

Kylie Jenner has never been a shrinking violet and the Keeping Up With The Kardashians star didn't disappoint last week!

The 17 year old was seen grabbing her cleavage in an online video, prompting a backlash from fans. One said, "I wish kylie jenner didnt try to shove her boobs down our throats 24/7 on snapchat."*

The video also led many to speculate she'd had a boob job, but she hit back, saying, "To whoever thinks I had breast implants, there's a whole lot of tape in here holding these up."

Days later, Kylie appeared on Snapchat with a fuller pout. She admitted to temporary fillers back in May, but they've certainly plumped up since then...

Will Gemma give the jungle a second chance?

It's claimed Dan won't be starring on CBB

Shamed reality star Dan Osborne, 24, was hoping to redeem himself in the upcoming series of Celebrity Big Brother. But sources have told new! he hasn't made the cut. The star was sacked from TOWIE earlier this year after tapes emerged of him threatening to stab his ex-girlfriend Megan Tomlin, mother of his 19-month-old son Teddy. Representatives for Dan and Channel 5 both refused to comment.

Professor Green's close shave with Millie!

Pro posted this picture on Millie's Instagram after she snapped him in bed with their dog (inset)

Prankster Professor Green won't be getting an award for "husband of the year" any time soon – he posted a picture of wife Millie Mackintosh in the bath last week!

Mills, 26, was caught having a shave when her hubby nicked her phone, took the snap and uploaded it to her one million Instagram followers.

He wrote, "That awkward moment when your husband catches you doing a spot of hair removal and decides to take a photo on your phone and post it."

Days earlier, Millie shared a snap of her hubby in bed with their dog. Was it payback, Pro?

McBusted's Harry Judd, 29, and his wife Izzy are expecting their first baby. The couple, who wed in December 2012, announced the news on Twitter. Congrats!

Danniella Westbrook, 41, has reportedly been offered $200,000 to take part in this year's Celebrity Big Brother. It's rumoured the ex-EastEnders star will be joined by Gail Porter.

Miley Cyrus, 22, is hosting this year's MTV VMAs in August. She announced the news while dressed up as an alien. No twerking with Robin Thicke please, Miley!

Happy birthday gorgeous George

The world was treated to another adorable snap of Prince George last week, which was released to mark his second birthday.

Kensington Palace tweeted a Mario Testino pic of the little prince grinning in his father's arms during Princess Charlotte's christening earlier this month.

The toddler, who Prince William recently described as a "little monkey", turned two on July 22 and celebrated with a family party at Anmer Hall, Kate and Wills' Norfolk home.

Guests included his great grandfather, Prince Philip and 12 toddlers!

GOOD WEEK

Who's on the up and who's going down

BAD WEEK

Jamie Oliver, 40, has been left red-faced after customers eating at his restaurant in Norwich had maggots fall on to their table from the ceiling. Now that's a kitchen nightmare!

Sarah Harding's eagerly awaited debut on Coronation Street was panned by some viewers. One fan of the show accused the star, 33, of "ruining" her favourite programme.

Caroline Flack, 35, is said to be "gutted" – she won't be jetting around the world for Judges' Houses on The X Factor. That stage of the show will go live, so the hosts will remain in the UK studio to oversee everything.

Taylor and Nicki tweet and make up

Taylor Swift was forced to make a grovelling apology last week, following a spat with Nicki Minaj over the VMAs nominations.

It began when Nicki, 32, asked on Twitter why her Anaconda video didn't receive a nomination in the Video Of The Year and Best Choreography categories at this year's awards – and suggested it was due to not using people with "slim bodies".

Taylor, 25, took offence to the tweet and hit back, "It's unlike you to pit women against each other. Maybe one of the men took your slot."

Katy Perry then waded in, suggesting Taylor was a hypocrite over her comments. Oh dear.

But all was well again when Taylor apologised to Nicki. She wrote, "I thought I was being called out. I missed the point, I misunderstood, then misspoke. I'm sorry, Nicki."

Tension was high between Taylor, Katy and Nicki

Vicky

In her first column for new!, Vicky insists she didn't turn up drunk for filming...

HOME COMFORTS

I decided to cancel the bootcamp I was supposed to go to last week as I had filming to do. Also, after 12 weeks of working on Judge Geordie, I just wanted to spend time with my family.

While I was at home I had my first DermaPen facial with Dr Esho. Kim Kardashian is a fan and it removes all the dead skin cells, pumps your skin full of vitamins and boosts collagen levels. It's a little vibrating pen with tiny needles – it sounds painful but they put a numbing cream on first and there was only a bit of blood spotting. The drilling sound was more off-putting than anything!

I bumped into my Geordie Shore pal Sophie Kasaei while I was there. She was having her lips done! Don't worry though – I won't be getting fillers and walking around like Lesley Ash! I like to look good without invasive surgery.

A boozy affair

According to reports, we had to scrap a filming session for Judge Geordie last week because I turned up "off my face" on booze. The story was totally exaggerated. I did turn up hungover and it probably wasn't the most professional thing I've ever done, but then I'm not that professional!

I'd been on a night out at Nobu with Casey Batchelor and my co-star Alex Cannon. We were meant to be having a quiet drink, but the next thing I know, I'm five gin and slimline tonics in!

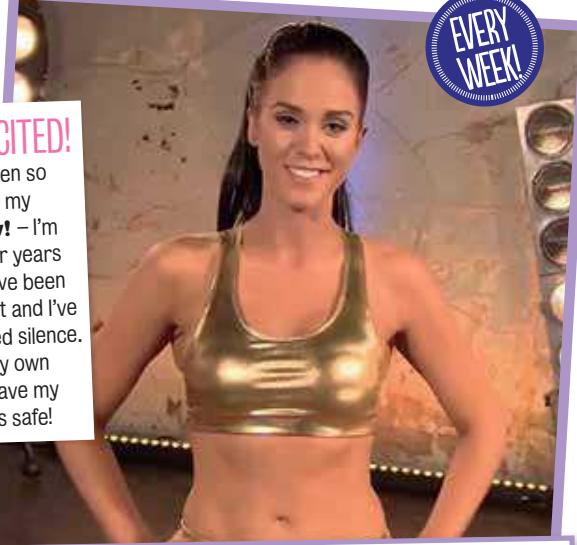

I tried setting Casey up with Alex, but they weren't having any of it. She said he was too young and he said she wasn't his type. Shame, I could've been maid of honour at their wedding!

Casey has briefly met Stevie, the guy I'm seeing, but they didn't get off to the best start. She's very protective and I understand why – I've had such a bad run of relationships. It's so important they get on, though. It does make me think twice if my friend doesn't like a guy.

I'M SO EXCITED!

Everyone's been so positive about my column in new! – I'm so excited! For years celebrities have been digging me out and I've kept a dignified silence. Now I have my own platform to have my say. Nobody's safe!

WORKOUT WONDER

My fitness DVD 7 Day Slim was voted second best in a poll last week, just behind Davina McCall's 7 Minute Fit. She's such an inspiration to me and I admire everything she's done with her career. My fitness DVD is one of my biggest achievements to date and I still get messages from fans telling me they swear by it.

That's a wrap!

I filmed my final episode of Judge Geordie last week and it was really emotional. We revisited some of the stories to see if they'd taken my advice and some really had changed for the better. But some were still knobs, of course! I'd say the best part of it all has been meeting Alex. We speak every day and I couldn't imagine my life without him.

I have a meeting this week with MTV to discuss series two and so far it's looking hopeful – it's been their highest rating show in its time slot to date, so I'm feeling pretty proud of myself!

There was a story last week about Vladimir Wilson, who appeared on Judge Geordie for his sex addiction, allegedly faking his £5m lotto win. I can't really say much as MTV is investigating, but I don't care whether he's rich or not, I was more concerned about who he was dipping!

MARNIE'S CONFESSION

Marnie caused a bit of controversy last week after admitting she'd kicked Ricky in the stomach, which I thought was shocking. When you're putting your life out there, you have a certain responsibility and for them to make light of it hasn't made them out to be great role models. Domestic abuse, a violent relationship – whatever you want to call it – is no laughing matter.

Kyle's not my boyfriend any more'

Holly Hagan drops a bombshell about her relationship with Kyle Christie...

Holly Hagan is a woman of many words. While we're always keen to hear what she has to say, when we catch up with the Geordie Shore star and she tells us that her co-star Kyle Christie isn't her boyfriend any more, our hearts start to sink.

But, just as we reach for the tissues – they are one of our favourite GS couples after all – the 23 year old reveals that although they wouldn't class each other as boyfriend and girlfriend, they are still seeing each other. "We were pushed into being boyfriend and girlfriend for the show and it's had a negative effect on our relationship," she says. "We're trying to take it slower." Phew!

Despite her relationship woes, Holly is in a bubbly mood as she chats away to us about her new collection for online fashion hub Lasula. She also opens up about gaining weight and why she's stopped having lip fillers. Over to you, Hol...

Hi Holly! We saw pictures of you and Kyle looking loved-up last week. How are things?

[Laughs] We're OK at the minute. We went through a lot of bad sh*t last series, to the point we ended up not being together any more.

Oh no! Are you back together?

We're seeing each other. We're trying to rebuild our relationship but we've put the boyfriend/girlfriend labels to the side for the minute. It makes no difference to us.

You posted a quote on Instagram saying you don't need a man. Was that a dig at Kyle?

[Laughs] No, it wasn't. He texted us and asked me if it was a dig. I just thought it was hilarious.

Was the pressure of being on the show the biggest problem for you?

Totally. There's a lot of manipulation going on behind the scenes. They just want the best for the series but it means they don't always take into consideration how it affects everyone else.

Will you be watching the new series?

No, it's the first one

Holly has been using a waist-training corset

She's taking things slowly with Kyle

INTERVIEW Karmel Doughty

I won't be watching. It's too raw. We're both trying to get over things that happened, so if I were to watch it, it would bring back the anger and hurt.

Sadly, it doesn't sound like there's a proposal on the cards for you and Kyle at the mo, but were you shocked about Marnie Simpson and Ricky Rayment's engagement?

I saw it coming but personally I wouldn't like to be engaged at that age. It doesn't mean they have to get married straight away.

Do you see it lasting?

I do. I've seen a complete change in Marnie.

How are things with Charlotte Crosby and Mitch Jenkins? When we last spoke to her she sounded reluctant to move in with him down south...

Things are OK at the minute but I think it's nice to keep your base at home. She's very family orientated and I know she wouldn't want to completely leave them and live that far away.

You tweeted pics of your new waist-training corset. How long have you been using it?

I put it on when I remember to – I've got a memory like a goldfish! It slims you down and I get a bad back so it really helps with my posture too.

Have you noticed a change to your body?

I don't think I'm wearing it enough, but I'd like to wear it properly to see if it does change the shape of my body. My hips are so big it makes my waist look small.

Are you still dieting?

Since we finished filming in Greece I haven't been very strict with my

Holly thinks Ricky and Marnie will go the distance diet. I've been having a break and relaxing. I'd like to get back on it again and feel healthier, but I'm not putting pressure on myself.

How much weight have you gained?

Four or five pounds.

What size and weight are you?

My jeans are all still a size 10. I'm around 9st 6lbs.

Are you training harder now filming's over?

I'm not the type of girl who loves exercising. I have to push myself into it. I'm always on the go but getting to the gym at the moment is a bit tough.

You've admitted you haven't had lip fillers for a year. Why did you stop?

I just didn't need them. I just use this lip stuff that makes them really plump. I wouldn't say no to having them done again, though.

Congratulations on your Lasula range. How does it feel to see your collection finished?

It's amazing! There's even a Curve range that goes up to a size 28.

Have you got a favourite piece?

There's a grey dress you can wear, like, a hundred different ways. It looks really expensive, too, but it's only £35!

Check out Holly's range at Lasula.co.uk

HOT OR NOT?

X Factor judge Rita has ended her relationship with Ricky – just after hitting the one-year mark.

The pop star, 24, called time on her romance with designer Tommy Hilfiger's 25-year-old rapper son to focus on her career. A source said, "They both made the decision to call it a day due to their work schedules. They've been on and off for a while. He's based in LA and she's based in London."

Meanwhile, her ex Calvin Harris, 31, who she split from last summer, said he's "insanely happy" with new girlfriend Taylor Swift, 25. Ouch!

Raquelle Stevens

We can barely keep track of Niall's rumoured romances since his official split from Australian student Melissa Whitelaw earlier this year, but his latest lover is believed to be LA socialite Raquelle.

The One Direction hottie, 21, was seen looking close to Raquelle during a night out in Malibu, after he was reportedly introduced to her by their mutual pal Selena Gomez.

She caused tension for lovers Nick, 19, and Harry Amelia, 22, in this year's Big Brother house. But since the show finished earlier this month, BB special guest Nikki, 33, seems intent on keeping young Nick for herself.

Nikki was seen kissing him at a party last week. But when we caught up with Nick and Harry, they were all over each other and Nick insisted, "Me and Nikki are just really good friends. I'm seeing a lot of Harry."

Harry added, "He can't help being beautiful. He can be friends with whoever he likes."

They held hands as they walked. They looked very loved-up." Kara, who first found fame on EastEnders, had a four-year relationship with Russian dancer Artem Chigvintsev, who she was paired with on Strictly in 2010. They split in 2014.

Simon Cowell has always enjoyed taking the mickey out of his fellow X Factor judges and last week former Girls Aloud star Cheryl Fernandez-Versini gave him more than enough ammo.

Sitting in the audience, we watched first hand as Simon mocked his pal after she burnt the sole of her foot by stepping on some hair tongs. Ouch!

Simon, 55, joked to fans, "This girl was told yesterday she could lose a leg and we still don't know if she's going to or not but she's here. A round of applause please. This is making me quite emotional just seeing what this girl's gone through. The hashtag is 'Pray for Cheryl.'"

Despite sticking her middle finger up at Simon during the auditions the day before, Cheryl, 32, merely rolled her eyes and said, "Simon is a child in a man's body. I'm absolutely fine now!"

We also bumped into a bleary-eyed Nick Grimshaw, 30, drinking coffee backstage, who told us he had the luxury of – wait for it – a 5.40am lie-in ahead of his Radio 1 Breakfast Show.

‘Kim’s all boobs and greasy arse!'

Ex-CBB star Katie Hopkins talks about Kim Kardashian's pregnancy and explains why Katie Price "disappoints" her...

Mouth and filter are two words that don't go together for Katie Hopkins. Since finding fame on the 2007 series of The Apprentice, Katie, 40, has become one of the most controversial voices in showbiz.

The married mum-of-three's blunt opinions have stunned and offended in equal measure, but when we – slightly nervously – meet for a chat, she says she "stands by" everything she says.

Having appeared in Celebrity Big Brother earlier this year alongside the likes of Katie Price, Katie is now gearing up to host her own show, If Katie Hopkins Ruled The World, in which she'll debate with other famous faces about current issues. And that's why we find ourselves in a London hotel with her one sunny afternoon, unsure of what the next half hour will hold!

Surprisingly, Katie, who married her second husband Mark Cross in 2010, is very friendly, sincere, and – yes – honest. Dressed in spring trousers and a white shirt, and slimmer and more feminine than expected, Katie talks celeb mums, cosmetic surgery and this year's X Factor panel...

With Jordan on CBB earlier this year

INTERVIEW Olivia Adams

So Katie, first things first – does anything offend you?

I'm impossible to offend.

Have you had any contact with Jordan since CBB?

No. Inside the house we didn't speak much because she had no opinions. That was disappointing. She's not my kind of person.

She's a fan of cosmetic surgery. What's your take on it?

I couldn't be bothered. I think that shows! With my girls I always say it doesn't matter what you look like.

You've called Kim Kardashian "one large bottom" – are you excited she's pregnant again?

She's just all boobs and greasy arse. And it's awful that she dresses her kid in leather. Kids shouldn't have their ears pierced until they're a bit more grown up or you end up looking like a crazy family of travellers.

Who do you think is a good celebrity mum role model?

Posh looks like she's doing a good job. She reinvented herself, she's still married to Becks and her children look normal. I'd have a drink with them, if they allowed it [laughs].

And a bad one?

I picked on Natasha Hamilton for being a four-by-four [four children with different fathers] just because

Kim is just one of the celebs Katie has slated

She laid into Natasha for being a "four-by-four"

it made me laugh. I'm not sure if that's a great model to go for.

Have you said anything publicly then apologised privately?

I've never apologised for anything I've said because I mean it and stand by it.

Your Twitter was hacked recently. Were you upset?

I was trying to cook a roast and give everyone a nice Father's Day while keeping a facade of "everything's fine". But you have to take your hat off to them, it's sophisticated work.

Do you worry it will happen again?

It absolutely could! I could shut up and go away but they're not going to get me that easily.

Does your husband ever win an argument with you?

He's widely known as "lovely Mark". We're so opposite but it works. I had two children before I met him and he took them on. It's admirable. I'm not sure I could do it.

Will you tune in to The Apprentice this year?

I haven't watched it for ages.

I preferred it back in my day – it seemed more business-focused with actual grafters. Now it's gone into the performance characters.

What's your opinion on the X Factor panel?

Nick Grimshaw and Rita Ora make me feel my age. When they had Mel B, I still felt part of it because she's feisty and a bit older. I don't get Rita. She was crap on The Voice, so how does that make you good for The X Factor?

Would you like to be a judge?

Of course, but Simon Cowell said he'd rather cut himself and sit in a bath of vinegar than go anywhere near me [laughs]!

Katie doesn't think Rita belongs on the X Factor panel

If Katie Hopkins Ruled The World is on every Thursday from August 6 at 10pm on TLC

Ben Affleck

The stress of separating from wife Jennifer Garner has clearly taken its toll on Ben, 42. The new Batman appears to have gone from superhero to superzero in just a few months. Sad face!

Sean Penn

He's known for being an 80s pin-up but why newly single Sean, 54, is starting to look like he's in his eighties is anyone's guess.

Christian Bale

The actor, 41, needs to visit a hairdresser for a spruce up sharpish! His long hair and beard are seriously ageing.

Tom Cruise

He had us all swooning in Top Gun, but it seems holding on to his youthful looks is a Mission: Impossible for the 53 year old.

Russell Crowe

The Aussie actor, 51, is less Gladiator and more Gladiator these days. Someone please bring back the hunky Russell of old!

ER, WHAT?!

This lot are proof that good looks are fleeting – even for the most handsome A-list boys...

Will Smith

The Fresh Prince, 46, is looking anything but. OK, we'll accept that your new bald look is for your Suicide Squad movie role, Will, but we will not accept you keeping it...

Shane Warne

Someone should Warne ex-cricketer Shane, 45, that too much filler and Botox is not a good look. But we think he's well past that point now...

Liam Gallagher

Been indulging in Cigarettes And Alcohol, Liam? Or is that porky turn a result of new love Debbie Gwyther feeding the 42 year old up?

Leonardo DiCaprio

What's happened to Leo? Now 40, it seems our teenage crush's looks have gone down with the Titanic...

David Duchovny

With bouffant hair and a belly that's in danger of resembling a pumpkin, the 54 year old is no longer the hunk we loved in The X Files.

Q What's your favourite piece from your new collection?

A It's either my white suit or my long maxi dress [left]. Maxis are really easy to work in the summer and I like the white suit because it has long sleeves – you can't rely on the British summer.

Q What's been your worst fashion disaster and are there any trends you'd never wear?

A When I was young, velour tracksuits were in, so that was probably my worst. I avoid harem pants – I've got a bit of a bum so it's not a good look!

Q Would you ever go into designing for men or children?

A Not men but maybe kids one day. I've learned a lot from having a little girl, but I don't know how I'd fit that in at the minute!

Q Who's got the better wardrobe – you or Marvin?

A He actually has more shoes than me. I do clear-outs a lot more than he does. He's more of a hoarder.

Q Which celebrity would you love to see wearing your collection and who do you take style inspiration from?

A I just love seeing someone walking down the street wearing my collection. I take a lot of inspiration from the catwalks and I love Blake Lively's style.

Q Are you nervous about joining The Xtra Factor and has Cheryl Fernandez-Versini given you any advice?

A Not yet, but I probably will be when the live shows start. I just feel lucky. Cheryl's a good friend so she's welcomed me to the team. We feel comfortable that we're both there.

'My boyfriend poisoned me with toilet cleaner'

After Sarah Sutherland split from her boyfriend, she had no idea he'd carry out such unthinkable revenge...

Sarah Sutherland's life with her partner Lee Osler was, for the most part, happy. They had two children, Grace, now six, and Thomas, five, and every day was a whirlwind of nursery drop-offs and child-friendly activities.

But after five years together, the couple's relationship ended. The break-up was amicable, but when Sarah started seeing someone else, Lee flipped, furious there was no hope of a reconciliation.

Instead of moving on, Lee, 35, took revenge by poisoning Sarah's drink with bleach. His actions could have killed her.

Now recovering from her ordeal, Sarah, 28, a full-time mum from Hull, tells new! how she's trying to move on with her life...

LWhen I first met Lee Osler, it really was love at first sight. My sister knew him and invited me to his flat for a drink one day in February 2008. He was handsome and shy, but there was a spark between us and soon we were a couple.

At the time, I was working in a canteen and Lee worked in a factory. He was charming and kind and my family agreed he was lovely. We'd only been together a few months when we talked about starting a family. I soon got pregnant and we were thrilled. Lee looked after me as my bump grew, and when our daughter Grace was born in January 2009, it brought Lee to tears.

I'd been living at home with my parents, but after Grace arrived, we moved into Lee's flat, which was over the road. After a while, we realised my mum's place was more child-friendly, so Grace and I moved back. But Lee still came over to visit all the time and, in May 2010, our son Thomas arrived.

Soon after, I was made redundant so I became a full-time mother. We were a close-knit family and the first few years of parenthood were great. Lee and I felt closer than ever.

"If you ever leave me, I'll be heartbroken," Lee would tell me. At the time, I was touched he was so in love with me.

But as time went on, Lee started drinking. At first it wasn't a problem, but then he started buying cans of cider from the shop and I'd find him asleep on the sofa in the afternoon.

I tried nagging him and even threatened to leave, but nothing helped. We had some temporary breaks and I warned him he couldn't behave like that around the kids.

He did keep promising me he'd change, but after a short time of cutting down on booze, he'd start again. "I'll make things better," he promised.

"I've heard it all before," I said in August 2013. "I can't do this any more. We need to split for good."

It was incredibly sad, but I couldn't see any other way. I was determined to keep things amicable, and things worked for a while. Lee still picked the kids up from nursery and I found a house for me, Grace and Thomas, who were then four and three, so it felt like a fresh start.

But a few months later, I got together with a new partner. Lee was furious, and when I told him my boyfriend was a guy we both knew, things suddenly soured. Looking back, I can see he'd been holding out hope that we'd get back together. "I've got more going for me than him!" he raged.

"Can't you be happy for me?" I begged. But instead Lee, who'd never seemed jealous, started calling me a slut and a slag. He was like a different person. I decided he just needed time and, thankfully, after a few weeks he seemed to calm down. He saw a doctor who referred him for counselling and prescribed antidepressants.

But every time he had a drink, the anger would return. Lee started bringing the kids home late and, eventually, I told him I couldn't see him any more and we arranged that he'd drop the children off with my mum instead.

FRIENDS AGAIN

Things bobbed along OK until one Saturday in January 2014 when we threw Grace a birthday party. Trying to do the right thing, I invited Lee. "I'm going out this evening so I've hired a babysitter," I told him.

"Why don't you cancel her and I'll stay with the kids at yours?" Lee suggested.

"If you're sure?" I replied, happy things were harmonious again.

When I got home at 10.30pm, Lee was watching a football match. "Do you want a nightcap?" I asked. "No thanks, I've got some cans," he replied.

I fixed myself a vodka and Coke, and later made another vodka using orangeade left over from Grace's party as a mixer. "Yuck," I gagged, as the saccharine taste hit my tongue. "That cheap pop is awful." It was so bad I couldn't finish it.

Soon, Lee left and I headed to bed. But the next morning I woke up feeling horrific. My head

Sarah was terrified that she could die as a result of her laced drink

BLEACH: THE DANGERS

Professor Rob Chilcott, head of toxicology at the University Of Hertfordshire, says:

"The active ingredient in bleach is a chemical called hypochlorite. If ingested, this can cause mild to moderate burns to the lining of the mouth and throat, as well as nausea, vomiting and diarrhoea."

"The amount of hypochlorite in household bleach products is relatively small and so rarely causes significant injury."

"In general, treatment will not be required if only small amounts of bleach (eg less than a mouthful) have been drunk and a small glass of milk may provide some relief from any mild burning sensation. For larger volumes, seek medical attention. Never attempt to induce vomiting, as this will do more harm than good."

Sarah ended the relationship with Lee because of his drinking

'HE POURED BLEACH INTO THE VODKA IN MY FRIDGE, MAKING A POTENTIALLY LETHAL COCKTAIL FOR ME TO DRINK'

was throbbing and I had a terrible tummy ache. I couldn't stay off the toilet.

I put it down to a hangover or a tummy bug and, in agony, I took some paracetamol and tried to soldier on. "I'll take the kids out for a bit," offered Lee, when he found out I was feeling poorly.

He picked them up at lunchtime, dashing off with barely a word to me. I ended up staying in bed all day. The following day I still had diarrhoea, but by the Tuesday I finally started to feel better, so my partner came round to see me. But I got the shock of my life when two police officers suddenly turned up.

"We have Lee in custody," they explained. "Last night he admitted to his counsellor that he poisoned your drink with bleach."

"What?" I stammered. I was so gobsmacked I could barely take it all in.

As the full horror of what they were saying hit me, I realised it must have been on Saturday night. "So that's why I felt so awful," I said, aghast.

My boyfriend was horrified too, but I insisted we should let the police deal with Lee. After the officers left, I put the kids to bed in a daze, unable to believe what Lee had done to me – his children's mother.

NASTY CHEMICALS

I went to my doctor and she reassured me that, physically at least, there was no permanent damage. But she prescribed some pills to help me sleep.

Following Lee's attempt to poison me, I suffered terrible panic attacks and felt scared to leave the house. I thought about all the nasty chemicals in bleach, which I'd read can be fatal if consumed. The thought that I could have died and left my gorgeous children without a mum was just too horrific for words. My confidence plummeted.

When Lee came to stand trial, I didn't have to give evidence, thankfully. The court heard that he blamed me for the break-up and was determined to exact revenge, so he poured 10ml of Mr Muscle bleach into the vodka in my fridge, making a potentially lethal cocktail for me to drink.

At Hull Crown Court in November 2014, Lee admitted administering poison with intent to injure and was handed an eight-month sentence, suspended for two years. He was also ordered to attend a "building better relationships" programme and was made the subject of a three-year restraining order banning him from contact with me unless through child and family services.

His parents see the children occasionally, but Lee doesn't. It's heartbreaking when the kids ask, "Why can't we see Daddy?" All I can do is tell them he's been naughty and that they'll see him one day.

Because he was such a great dad before, I'm stunned at what he did. Thinking about it brings me to tears. But I'm still with my partner and I'm due to give birth to my third child any day now, so I'm doing my best to move on. The kids are excited, so I'm hoping it'll be a new start for all of us.

LIZ McCLARNON

Alomic Kitten singer and 2008 Celebrity MasterChef winner Liz, 34, tells new! about her cheese soufflé disaster and why top chef Heston Blumenthal makes her swoon...

What would you serve to impress your dinner guests?

Some canapés to begin with, then I'd make some cheeky cocktails – because everyone is easier to deal with when they're drunk! For the main course I'd make deconstructed beef Wellington. That was my signature dish when I was on MasterChef.

Do you have a favourite restaurant?

I am crazy about Caribbean food at the moment. There's a restaurant chain called Turtle Bay and I love it. And there's a great Caribbean takeaway at the top of my road where I live in London. I go there a lot. They're like, "Hi Liz!"

Are there any foods you dislike?

Celery! I'm also not keen on peppers, but I'm ### getting better.

Have you had any cooking disasters?
Yes. Once, my ex decided to open the door of the oven when I was cooking cheese soufflés. It completely ruined them. I had to do the whole recipe again and when he was eating them later, he said, "These taste nice... can you pass me the ketchup?" I went insane!

Who's your favourite celebrity chef?

Heston Blumenthal. He's so smooth! I went to one of his dinner parties on his show. He'd broken his hand but still cooked all night!

Feta, avocado & peach salad

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

SERVES 4-6

Ready in 30 minutes

This fresh and fruity salad is tasty, healthy and light – and it looks great, too...

INGREDIENTS

4 tbsp olive oil
1 onion, finely chopped
300g bulgur wheat
1 red chilli
150g baby spinach leaves
4 spring onions
30g fresh coriander
Zest and juice of 1 lime
2 red peppers, deseeded and sliced
2 peaches, sliced
1 ripe avocado, stoned and cut into chunks
100g feta, crumbled
Lime wedges, to garnish

METHOD

■ Heat 1 tbsp oil in a pan and cook the onion until softened but not coloured. Add the bulgur wheat and pour on 600ml hot water. Bring to the boil then reduce the heat to a low simmer for 20 minutes. Remove from the heat and set aside.
■ Meanwhile, place the chilli, spinach, spring onion, coriander stalks and leaves (holding back a handful of leaves to garnish) into a food processor with 2 tbsp olive oil and the lime zest. Blitz to a salsa (or finely chop by hand). Stir into the bulgur wheat.
■ On a preheated griddle, cook the peppers and peaches for 5-6 minutes until lightly charred and softened.
■ Arrange the bulgur wheat onto plates and scatter the peaches and peppers on top. Add the avocado and feta. Drizzle on the remaining oil and serve, garnished with a lime wedge.

How to be SUN safe

As millions of us flock overseas for some sun and fun, experts are worried we're still not protecting our skin as well as we should...

With summer in full swing, Brits are jetting off on holiday in their droves, desperate to get a TOWIE-style golden glow. But although the "wear sunscreen" message has been around for years, experts are concerned that skin cancer is still on the rise. Even in the UK, you don't have to look too far to see many of us are still turning lobster red from sunburn.

Celebs are among the worst culprits when it comes to taking tanning too far. Earlier this month, Lindsay Lohan tweeted a photo of herself with some mean-looking tan lines, while last week singer Sam Smith showed off his "lobster" skin on Instagram.

So how should we protect ourselves? And how do we know which sunscreen will stop us sizzling? new! investigates...

A "TSUNAMI OF SKIN CANCER"

These days, most of us are familiar with sunscreens and know a higher sun protection factor (SPF) offers us more protection from the sun's rays. But every year more than 250,000 new cases of non-melanoma skin cancer – the most common type – are diagnosed in the UK as well as more than 13,000 new cases of melanoma, the most dangerous type. The result is around 2,148 deaths annually.

"We're facing a tsunami of skin cancer," warns Dr Walayat Hussain, spokesperson for the British Association Of Dermatologists. "It's partly due to people travelling more, but also they're more aware and going to their GP sooner. We say check your skin regularly and if in doubt, check it out. Early detection is the key to cure."

HOW DOES SUNSCREEN HELP?

"Sunscreens have been around since the time of the Romans," explains cosmetic dermatologist Dr Rachael Eckel. "Visible sunscreens like zinc oxide are like tiny little rocks in an emollient base that sit on your skin and reflect the sun's rays to protect your skin."

These are associated with that classic white "cricketer face" look and these days we demand more cosmetically acceptable sunscreens, which means chemical sunscreens that aren't visible.

"These work by applying a chemical, such as avobenzone or oxybenzone, to the skin which, when the sun hits, undergoes a chemical reaction that downgrades the sun's rays to something less harmful," says Dr Eckel.

THE MYTH OF THE "SAFE" TAN

The mantra you'll hear from any dermatologist worth their salt is, "There's no such thing as a safe tan!"

"A tan is a sign you've had damage to your skin and your colour-producing cells are trying to prevent further damage to the cells," insists Dr Hussain. "It's a bit like putting an umbrella up when it's already started raining."

Many of us refuse to believe it (Michelle Keegan and Katie Price, we're looking at you!), but experts insist tanned skin simply isn't healthy.

Sunscreen: a user's guide

Buying sunscreen is a challenge (especially if you're frantically choosing a 3-for-2 deal at the airport just before your flight is called!) and using it correctly is a whole other ball game. Here's our stress-free guide to SPF success...

Be sunscreen smart this summer

1. SPF SAVVY

SPF stands for sun protection factor and it protects the skin from UVB rays that cause burning. If your skin would take, say, ten minutes to burn in the sun without any sunscreen, then an SPF 10 would give you ten times longer in the sun without burning, while an SPF 30 would allow you 30 times longer.

"The key to the sunscreen game is to find the right SPF and anything above 30 is where you want to be looking," says Dr Eckel.

But no SPF will give you 100 per cent sun protection, so if you're fair-skinned or you're going somewhere hot, bolster your protection by wearing SPF 50 and don't stay out in the sun too long. Wear clothing and a wide-brimmed hat and avoid sun exposure during the hottest part of the day, between 11am and 3pm.

2. UVA AWARE

It wasn't until the 80s that we became fully aware of the dangers of UVA rays – the ones that cause the skin to age as well as skin cancer – and realised we need to protect ourselves from those, too. This means using a broad-spectrum sunscreen that covers UVA and UVB.

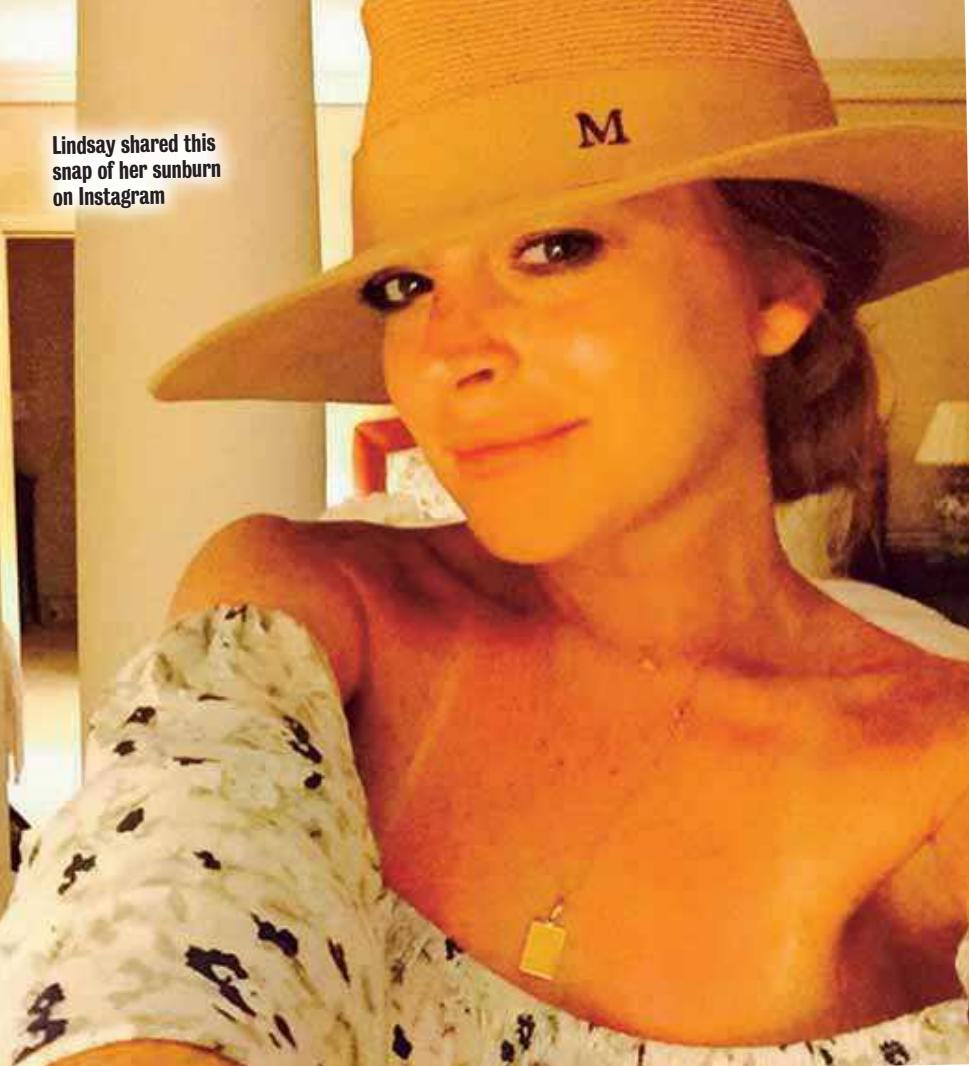

"No one has agreed internationally on an SPF equivalent rating for UVA protection," says Dr Eckel. "The European Commission has standardised it somewhat, so look for either a five-star approval rating, or a circle with the letters UVA inside, which means a product has UVA coverage that's at least a third of the UVB coverage."

Lydia Bright looked scorched
by the sun

Lindsay shared this snap of her sunburn on Instagram

"On a microscopic level, a tan is the skin screaming that the DNA has been damaged," says Dr Eckel.

As for claims we're at risk of vitamin D deficiency due to a lack of sunny days, experts say we should get our vitamin D from our diet or from supplements rather than from sunshine. And if you want a golden glow, get a spray tan rather than a UVA-induced tan.

WHO'S MOST AT RISK?

Dermatologists say personal factors can increase your risk of skin cancer. "These include having fair skin or burning easily in the sun, excessive sun exposure (from living or working in the sun, particularly in hot countries), and having a history of malignant melanoma in your family," says Dr Adam Friedmann, consultant dermatologist at The Harley Street Dermatology Clinic. "Other risk factors include having a lot of moles and suffering problems with the immune system or taking immune-suppressing medications."

So what is it that we should be doing to help protect ourselves and stay safe in the sun? Read our users' guide to find out...

3. PRICE TAG

"Expensive sunscreens are no better than cheaper brands, as long as the cheaper brands meet the UVA and UVB criteria," says Dr Hussain.

So while higher end or more technical-sounding products might include sophisticated ingredients – such as antioxidants that can offset some of the damage sun does to your skin – if your budget restricts you to a supermarket's or chemist's own brand, the most important things are the SPF and UVA rating.

4. SLAP IT ON!

"People only put on a half to a third of the recommended sunscreen dosage," explains Dr Eckel. "We need the equivalent of about a golf ball to cover the skin of an average person."

But because people don't like how sunscreen feels – not to mention baulking at the price of it – they don't apply or reapply as much as they should.

5. TIMING IS KEY

"Apply sunscreen 30 minutes before you go out in the sun, and again 30 minutes after, because generally people don't put enough on at first," urges Dr Eckel. "It's crucial to find a formulation you like – spray or a cream – then you'll be more likely to wear it."

Reapply after swimming or if you're sweating a lot, and every two to four hours. As Dr Eckel insists, "By using any sunscreen every day, you've already won!"

"As for labels offering all-day-long protection, that's garbage," he adds. "If a product was protecting and isn't disintegrating because of water and sweat and sun, it would be in every sunscreen!"

CELEBRITY SUNBURN

Even image-obsessed stars can succumb to a tanning fail...

SAM SMITH

"My sun burn is SO BAD Lobster vvvvvvibes," Sam said on Instagram. "Just had to make this top to give it some air hahaaaaa."

KELLY OSBOURNE

Serial sunburn offender Kelly Osbourne has posted photos of her scorched skin several times, once using the hashtag #ImSmart!.

HEIDI KLUM

The supermodel posted a risqué pic of her burnt bum and captioned it, "Ouch."

SPENCER MATTHEWS

On a luxury break in St Barts, the Made In Chelsea star was seen wincing in pain at the raw-looking sunburn on his belly.

MOLE WATCH

Keeping tabs on any changes to the shape and colour of moles you have on your skin is crucial. "If it is treated early enough, malignant melanoma is curable, so if in doubt, get yourself checked," urges Dr Friedmann.

Here are his top tips on what you should look out for in moles that could be developing into melanoma...

- Rapidly growing or enlarging moles
- Moles that change shape and become irregular or asymmetrical
- Blurring of the borders of a mole
- Changing colour, particularly darkening, or more variations of colour appearing
- Ulceration or bleeding

'I found my long-lost twin... on YouTube!'

Two girls, two countries – and the video that united them after 25 years. Anaïs Bordier tells new! the amazing story of how she discovered she had a secret twin sister...

Growing up in France with loving parents, Anaïs Bordier always knew she'd been adopted after being born to a single mum in South Korea. At 25, and in her final year studying fashion design in London, she was happy, successful and loving her city life.

Then she found out something incredible. After a friend chanced upon a puzzling YouTube video, Anaïs discovered she had an identical twin sister. Unbeknown to Anaïs, Samantha Futerman had grown up in the US, also oblivious to the fact she had a sibling.

Here, Anaïs, 27, a handbag designer from Paris, tells new! how luck stepped in and brought her and her twin back together...

Standing in the corridor, just feet away from someone I was desperate to meet, my heart was thumping. For weeks we'd been texting, Skyping and Facebook messaging, my heart leaping every time my phone beeped.

It was like the most important blind date of all time, except it wasn't with a guy. At the age of 25, I was meeting my twin sister for the first time.

I always knew I was adopted. I was born in South Korea to a single mum and had no siblings. My adoptive parents, Jacques and Patricia Bordier, who worked at a leather company, took me in three months later. The three of us lived happily in Paris and Brussels.

It was difficult when children asked why I didn't look like my parents, but I'd just tell them I was adopted. "You're the child we always wanted," my parents said.

I didn't know my birth mother's name or have any pictures. Sometimes I wondered if she was married, or even still alive.

At 22, after university in Paris, I moved to London to study fashion design and shared a flat with a French friend. While in my final year, in December 2012, I was on the bus in London, coming back from fabric shopping, when my phone beeped. My university friend Kelsang had tagged me in a YouTube video on Facebook.

It was a comedy sketch showing a girl who looked exactly like me, talking in an American accent. My mind was all over the place. "I can't remember making this," I thought. "I must have been drunk."

As I peered closer, I realised the girl in the video had my face, my hair and my freckles... but it wasn't me! "What's going on?" I thought, my heart racing.

Kelsang had been looking on YouTube and stumbled upon the video. He thought it was peculiar that there was this girl who was my doppelgänger.

A week later, back home in Paris for Christmas, I showed two pictures to my parents – one of me, one of this girl. "That's funny," said Mum. "But in pictures people can look like anyone."

Even so, I'd never seen anyone who looked so similar to me. I tried desperately to find this mystery girl, but there was no name or contact details alongside the video.

Then, in February 2013, Kelsang dropped another bombshell. "I've seen that girl again," he said. "She's in a trailer for a movie called 21 And Over!" Grabbing my phone, I found the clip. Then I went straight on the online movie database IMDb and scrolled down to find her in the cast list photos. There it was. Her name was Samantha Futerman.

MYSTERY GIRL

I Googled her and suddenly it was all there. Samantha was born on November 19, 1987, the same day as me, and she was adopted from Korea. In shock, I called home.

"That girl has the same birthday as me and she's adopted!" I babbled

Anaïs contacted her sister on Facebook (below)

Anaïs Bordier

Hey,

My name is Anaïs, I am french and live in London. About 2 months ago, my friend was watching one of your videos with Kevjumba on youtube, and he saw you and thought that we looked really similar... VERY REALLY SIMILAR....we were making jokes about it etc. (I'm always being violent with people and hitting them too hahaha)

Today, he saw the trailer of 21 & over and told me he saw you again, I then checked your name on the cast, stalked you A LOT, and found out you were born the 9th of november 1987

she wrote. "Could we be twins?"

When she sent a picture of her adoption records, they had the same birthday and birth city as mine. I started jumping around the room like a crazy person. We messaged constantly for a week, sharing details about our families and where we grew up. I wanted to know everything about her.

A week later, we Skyped for the first time. When the video call connected, I couldn't keep the smile off my face. We were so alike, even our gestures – the way we rolled our eyes and used our hands. Three hours later, we said goodbye and I lay to Mum. Then she said the words I'd been both hoping for and fearing. "Could she be your twin?" she asked. "Of course!" I said.

Back home, I found Samantha on Facebook and sent her a message explaining what had happened. I signed off, "Let me know... don't freak out... Lots of love, Anaïs."

Clicking "send" felt crazy. That night, I found out everything I could about her. One of her YouTube videos was entitled, "How it feels to be adopted." Again, my heart was hammering.

The following afternoon, a friend suggested we send her a tweet, telling her to check her Facebook messages. I did, and seconds later she replied. "This is so weird," in bed, overwhelmed with happiness. I felt complete.

We knew we wanted to meet, so we decided she'd come to London for my graduate fashion show. Since Sam was in the film industry, she suggested making a documentary about our story. She started fundraising and recorded our Skype conversations. We also found a doctor in America who specialised in twins separated at birth. So we both swabbed our mouths and sent the samples to the lab for a DNA test.

FINALLY REUNITED

Three months after our first Skype conversation, in May 2013, Samantha boarded a plane to the UK. Both our families were incredibly excited for us, so they came too.

Sam and her friends making the documentary had rented a flat in east London where we would meet. As I pushed open the door, I felt faint. But then I saw Samantha across the room and slowly moved towards her.

Surrounded by people, we couldn't stop staring at each other. It was like she was my mirror. Then I poked her gently in the head and we both started laughing.

We had lunch and chatted. It sounds weird, but after we'd eaten we took a nap together in the flat where Sam was staying. Seeing my identical twin sister across the bed felt so normal that my anxiety just melted away.

We didn't stop talking all week and I was amazed how similar we were. We wore the same colour nail polish and both hated cooked carrots. The list went on.

That day, we Skyped the doctor in America. When she said, "Turn and hug your identical twin," Sam fell off her chair.

As we giggled with the exact same laugh, I realised I'd never felt happier.

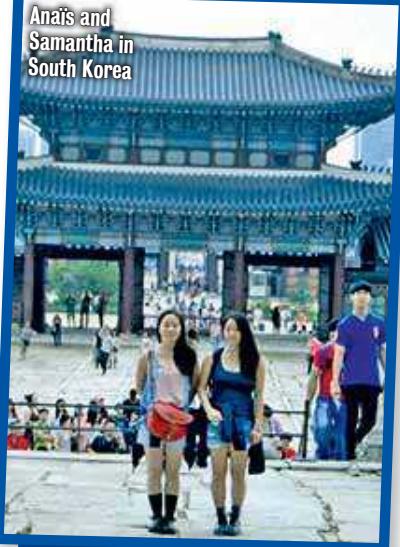

Watching Sam leave seven days later was really difficult, but I visited her in Los Angeles months later and we went to South Korea together, for a conference by the International Korean Adoptee Associations.

It's so exciting to have our documentary, Twinsters, out soon, to help tell our incredible story. Anything can happen in this life. We're proof of that!

'IT WAS LIKE FALLING IN LOVE!'

Anaïs's twin, Samantha Futerman, 27, an actress from Los Angeles, says:

"I'd been getting ready for a film premiere when Anaïs's message appeared. I thought, 'Oh man, some weird person's got hold of a photo of me,' then I realised she had my birthday. As I saw picture after picture of her, I thought, 'Oh my gosh, is this really happening?' But I was more elated than scared.

Later, on Skype, I stared at my own face thousands of miles away and heard my own laugh coming from someone else's mouth. I went nuts laughing, too.

Growing up with my brothers, Andrew, 29, and Matt, 33, I never felt like I was missing something. When I told my parents, Jackie and Judd, about Anaïs, they were cautious – until I showed them her baby photos.

Those first months talking to Anaïs were like falling in love. When we first met, we were like polarised magnets – when we got too close we couldn't touch each other. But when we finally hugged two days later it felt wonderful.

Now we talk, text, email and Skype every day. I tell her everything! We have a similar sense of style and humour, and when we met we'd both just ended long-distance relationships. Our sleeping habits and what we eat are the same, but my sister hates how I eat with my elbows on the table!

We've had such an amazing time together. We tried to look for our birth mother on our trip to Korea, but had no success. All we can do is wait and see.

If my friends weren't obsessed with YouTube or if I hadn't become an actor, we might never have found each other. But everything lined up perfectly."

Denise Welch

The actress and former Loose Women star, 57, loves a bowl of her hubby's pasta with crispy bacon and melted cheese...

HEIGHT: 5FT 4IN

WEIGHT: 9ST 10LBS

DRESS SIZE: 12

We know you're working out at the moment – what's your exercise plan?

I find it hard to get the motivation going – this is a lazy bird talking! – so my husband Lincoln and I both have trainers. I work out in the gym three times a week doing interval training with hand weights and cardio.

Your diet sounds pretty healthy, but what do you enjoy on a cheat day?

I don't do this very often, but I have pepperoni pizza and a really big bowl of pasta, crispy bacon and melted cheese that Lincoln makes me. He brings it to me on my settee when I'm watching rubbish TV! I like fruit and nut chocolate, too. I put on over 2st when I gave up drinking [in 2012] and all the sugar that had vanished from my veins needed to be filled up again, so Lincoln and I – who had also stopped drinking – acquired a massive sweet tooth. We had to nip it in the bud.

How do you celebrate now you don't drink?

Giving up alcohol is the best thing I've ever done, but sparkling water does get boring when you go out. Some places do nice ginger beer, so Lincoln and I drink that. But if we're in a cocktail bar they'll always have a virgin cocktail on offer.

What's your favourite part of your body?

My shoulders. I like dresses that are off the shoulder and I'm currently working on my arms. Millions of years ago when I was in Corrie I used to wear sleeveless dresses and everyone used to comment on my arms looking toned, so I want to keep them that way. I want to know I can wave to someone across the road without knocking three children over with my underarms!

We're sure that won't happen! What's your least favourite part?

My lower tummy. I've had two children and it takes an awful lot of work for my tummy muscles to strengthen. I find it a bit frustrating, but I don't think I'm doing too badly!

MY DIET SECRETS

My food diary

BREAKFAST

"Lincoln made me a three-egg cheese and mushroom omelette, which I had with coffee. I drink about seven cups of instant coffee throughout the day."

NUTRITION CONSULTANT IAN MARBER SAYS, "This is a high-protein, high-fat breakfast – enjoy the eggs but go easy on the cheese. The upper limit for caffeine intake is 400mg a day, but at 100mg a cup, Denise is having 700mg. This can affect sleep and stress levels."

LUNCH

"I brought a LighterLife nut fudge bar with me while I was on the go. It has all the nutrients in it. I'm not very good at drinking water, but I do have about three pints a day."

IAN SAYS, "The fudge bar is OK, but an apple and a handful of almonds is just as good. Three pints of water a day is fine, but remember that all liquids count towards overall hydration."

SNACKS

"I sometimes miss out on my five-a-day, so I'm into juicing. Today I had one with kale, spinach, a banana, raspberries, blackberries, flax seeds, water, and an Actimel yoghurt."

IAN SAYS, "Juices count only as one or two of your five-a-day as they lack fibre, even if they are bursting with nutrients. Adding flax is a great way to get protein and some omega-3 fats."

258 kcals

DINNER

"I had fillet steak with broccoli and spinach. I'm trying not to have too many carbs but, as I'm working out, my trainer tells me I must, so I had some brown rice too."

IAN SAYS, "Steak is a good source of iron, which will help keep energy levels going. Having carbs is all very well, but Denise needs them during the day, not at night – so maybe have a slice of toast with breakfast rather than rice later on."

And it's a big hit with the stars too. Marvin and Rochelle Humes honeymooned there, while Michelle Heaton and Pixie Lott are recent visitors. Rachel Stevens has also been spotted in Portugal's southernmost region.

WHERE TO STAY: We stayed at the Holiday Inn in Armação de Pêra, which is right beside the sea – you can even hear the waves from your balcony at night. # Mission: Impossible Rogue Nation

the week

CERTIFICATE: 12A DIRECTOR: Christopher McQuarrie
STARRING: Tom Cruise, Simon Pegg, Rebecca Ferguson, Alec Baldwin and Jeremy Renner

What's it all about?

Ethan Hunt (Cruise) is forced to go rogue after he and the rest of the IMF team are ordered to disband after being blamed for destroying the Kremlin. Hunt then becomes embroiled in another impossible mission – to save the world from a new terrorist organisation called The Syndicate.

What's good?

This film has got it all as far as action is concerned – high-speed motorbike chases, jumping onto planes mid-take-off and stealing people's identities. A lot of the film takes place in London, too, so it's fun spotting familiar scenery. And Simon Pegg's character, Benji, has some hilarious lines.

What's bad?

Some scenes are slightly too far-fetched for even the most vivid imaginations and occasionally the really dramatic scenes are on the cheesy side.

new! VERDICT: It's no James Bond but this is still a decent throwaway action flick!

Hot Pursuit

CERTIFICATE: 12A DIRECTOR: Anne Fletcher
STARRING: Sofia Vergara, Reese Witherspoon, Robert Kazinsky

What's it all about?

An uptight cop (Witherspoon) ends up on the run with a criminal's wife (Vergara) in this buddy comedy.

What's good?

It's amusing watching glamorous Sofia towering over a tomboyish Reese, who gladly pokes fun at her short stature at regular intervals. The two have an easy chemistry, which goes a long way.

What's bad?

Former EastEnders Robert feels miscast, and the jokes get repetitive after a while.

new! VERDICT: Great cast, so-so comedy

I AM CAIT SUNDAY, AUG 2, E!, 9PM

THE BIG REUNION

Caitlyn is reunited with her mum and two sisters for the first time as a woman. While her sister Pam knew about Caitlyn's inner struggle for 30 years, her mum had no clue...

GAME OVER

In a lighter moment, Caitlyn plays tennis with her sister and proves her sense of humour is still intact, joking about wearing a sports bra and having nowhere to put her balls. Ahem!

She even talks about contemplating suicide. "I've had some very dark moments in my life," she says. "I've been in my house with a gun and said, 'Just end it right here. No more pain.' That struggle is real and I've been there."

Here's a taster of what to expect in the first episode...

First up, top artists including Jason Derulo and Omi rock Malta, then the likes of Little Mix, Kodaline and Tinie Tempah set the Devonshire coast on fire. Not literally, obvs.

TUT SAT & SUN, AUG 1 & 2, CHANNEL 5, 9PM

A total of 63 sets were built and 800 extras used for the battle scenes in this big-budget dramatisation of the story of Egyptian pharaoh king Tutankhamun... and we don't suppose Sir Ben Kingsley, who plays Ay, grand vizier to the king, came cheap either! The epic story plays out over two evenings, box-set style, so switch your phone to silent...

BLOCKBUSTER!

TRAVEL GUIDES MON, AUG 3, ITV, 9PM

Why should TV presenters get all the freebie holidays? This series sends five ordinary British households to different locations to get their opinions on their destination. First up is Dubai, and hairdressers Craig and Stuart Chapman-Blackwell are uncomfortable about staying in a country where it's illegal to be gay...

A CUPPA WITH... KELLE BRYAN

We chat to the singer who appears in ITV's quirky celebrity reality show, Flockstars

Are your children, Regan, three, and Kayori, 22 months, showing any signs of wanting to go into showbiz?

I'd prefer they did something else because I know how tough this journey is. My son loves drumming, and so far Kayori isn't really into anything other than being a bit of a madam!

Will we be hearing any more from Eternal?

I know the girls are really keen to do something, but the lifestyle and environment aren't for me.

How did you find the whole Big Reunion experience?

It was all about closure for me. It's like going through a divorce. I didn't have any answers to why I was sacked in the way that I was, so it was good that I faced those issues and talked it through with the girls. Now we get together from time to time and it's a lot nicer!

You're appearing on Flockstars, where celebrities are paired up with sheepdogs to do trials...

When my agent first told me about it, I said, "It doesn't sound like my sort of thing, bye!" But then I thought it would be a really good way to get stuck in and get my hands dirty.

How well did you get on with the other contestants on the show?

Really well. It's not at all a celebrity environment, everyone's up to their knees in sheep poo! No one was up their own backside.

Would you consider doing any other reality shows?

If it's something I want to learn and you get paid for it, I'd have to be pretty silly to turn it down. But I'm A Celebrity isn't my cup of tea. I don't want to eat an animal's willy, thanks!

Flockstars, Thurs, Aug 6, ITV, 8.30pm

I get stalked in supermarkets!

As hit series The Great British Bake Off returns, new! chats to Paul Hollywood and his fellow judge Mary Berry...

Surely it's not that time of year again already?! Yes, The Great British Bake Off is back, so strap yourselves in for more cake-based battles, choux showdowns and bread-fuelled fisticuffs!

We can't wait to be introduced to the 12 brave bakers who'll be taking each other on inside the Bake Off tent this time round. But before we do, new! decides to spend some quality time with feared but respected judges Paul Hollywood and Mary Berry, to get a flavour of what we can expect from the new series.

And as we chat, the pair are as friendly and as funny as ever, bantering away like the old friends they've become.

Here, Mary, 80, and Paul, 49, discuss the new series, which they say is the most closely fought yet, their celebrity fans and why Paul can't do the weekly shop any more...

Hi guys! Bake Off is back! Tell us what we can expect this year...

Paul: The contestants are all exceptionally good. They were good from the beginning. Even the final is a bit of a game-changer.

Mary: We've got 12 rather than 13 contestants this year, from all over Britain. They started off quite cool and they were very separate from each other. They had obviously watched Bake Off and they were very focused about doing their own thing, rather than looking left or right. Over time, they bonded.

P: Yes, the bakers are very confident this year.

What's surprised you the most?

P: The flavours that were introduced.

M: They use the internet a lot more. Some of the combinations didn't work but you can get a lot of dried fruit now. They are using a lot more essences and extracts.

INTERVIEW Christine Smith

So contestants are more adventurous?

M: Much more. The standard was amazing. Even though we're on to series six, do they still make common mistakes?

P: Yes. On the technical challenge, they wait for someone to start and then pass the baton to the next person who might know a little bit about the next bit. But if something goes wrong, they all go wrong!

M: Then it's a test to see how they get out of the mistake and what they do.

Are the contestants a lot more competitive this time?

P: They were more competitive to begin with and then they got to know each other. They are more nervous this year, probably because it was built up as, "The biggest programme on TV." I told a few of them it would change their life and they replied, "Do you think?" Er, yes! Thanks to Bake Off, you're now a fashion icon, Mary. Will there be some more iconic pieces of clothing this year?

M: There are some good jackets! All of them are nice and cosy. When that tent is open up at the sides, it's the most freezing place.

The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge love the show. Have you other celeb fans?

M: Chris Evans. He's always talking about it.

P: I went on The Jonathan Ross Show and Keira Knightley told me that when she found out the Bake Off final was on the same night as her premiere, she didn't want to go to the premiere! Apparently, Kim Cattrall wants to go on the celeb version...

P: Yes, I saw that.

Paul, Chris is a big fan and you love cars. How about being a co-host on Top Gear?

P: No, it's not for me. Baking is my job. Cars are my hobby.

You are both very busy.

Do you ever take time off?

P: I do. Mary doesn't!

M: I'm going away for two weeks with my family. I'm not working for two weeks!

P: August is about the family. We go on holiday and do the CarFest, which is great fun.

Do people constantly send you cakes?

P: You get a lot of people at festivals bringing you stuff and asking you if you will judge it. Even at petrol stations! I try not to go to supermarkets now because, if I do, everyone watches what you're putting in your trolley!

You get stalked round the supermarket?!

P: Yes!

Mary, how did you celebrate your 80th earlier this year?

M: I had a lovely meal with family and friends and we're having a big family holiday together. Do you have any burning ambitions left?

M: I have no burning ambitions. The thing I love most is Bake Off. That comes first. I'm not doing Junior Bake Off because that just takes over. We are doing Christmas, celebrity and the main Bake Off. Both Paul and I go to book signings and there is nearly always some little person who comes up with a box they've designed themselves and inside is a little cupcake. Children are so into Bake Off.

P: Bake Off's for all generations. You can absorb yourself as a family watching it together. Is there anything you don't like about Bake Off?

M: The first episode. There are 12 contestants and you don't know them. Towards the end, there are fewer people and you've got to know them. When it is 12, it is difficult to judge.

What's been the maddest Bake Off spin-off you've seen?

P: I was in Italy last year with the family and I came across Bake Off and me speaking in fluent Italian. It was hilarious! There's not a place on the planet where you don't get spotted. It's strange!

M: They do a puppet show. Us as puppets!

Paul, you're always rumoured to be doing Strictly. Are you going to do it this year?

P: No, not yet. I've got too much on.

M: He'll do it one day and I'll be watching him!

The Great British Bake Off returns to BBC1 on Wednesday, August 5, at 8pm

'Paul will do Strictly Come Dancing one day and I'll be watching him!'

Album of the week

ANDREA FAUSTINI KELLY

What you need to know...

Last week Andrea dropped into new! armed with cupcakes, telling us, "I'd like to feed Cheryl one!" Now, here's the former X Factor star armed with his debut album!

First impressions...

We're getting a Sam Smith-esque vibe from Andrea on this collection of soulful pop. It'll All End In Tears is the first of several powerhouse ballads, all of which let his vocals shine, while more upbeat tunes like Evaporate and Back To The Sea prove he's no one-trick pony.

Andrea also pays tribute to his heritage with Lascia Tutto Così sung in Italian, and the gospel choir on Give A Little Love would give anyone goosebumps. It's everything we'd hoped for – and more!

Download now:

It'll All End In Tears.

Did you know?

The album is named after Andrea's alter ego. In his words, "A strong, brave girl who is committed enough to follow her dreams."

new! verdict:

A brilliant debut album!

What song do you love right now?

Rihanna's Bitch Better Have My Money. I always listen to it before I go on stage. It riles me up!

Do you have a favourite karaoke song?

Whitney Houston's I Will Always Love You.

What song makes you turn off the radio?

Gangnam Style. I'm over it.

What was the last live gig you went to?

The Weeknd in Camden.

Melissa spoke to new! backstage at the New Look Wireless Festival

ELLA EYRE GOOD TIMES

Ella has released an absolute banger from upcoming debut album Feline and we're already placing bets on it being the song of the summer. We love its catchy drumbeat and bass vibe and, as always, Ella's powerful vocals complement it perfectly.

SCANDALOUS LIES

by Nigel May (Bookouture, £9.99)

Will Victoria get her marriage back on track, and what has Nova's husband been doing behind closed doors?

With more scandal than an episode of TOWIE, this gripping bonkbuster, which comes packed with lovers, liars and divas, is perfect to inject some heat into your summer hols reading.

Emmerdale's "summer of infidelity" comes to a dramatic end this week, leaving at least one resident dead and several others injured. Chrissie sets fire to Robert's car as they argue at the scrapyard and the flames creep ever nearer to some gas canisters.

Meanwhile, Debbie and Pete finally tie the knot. But just as they're about to celebrate becoming Mr and Mrs, Debbie realises her "Dear John" letter has made its way into the stack of wedding cards. However, it turns out that's the least of her worries, as a trail of destruction rips through the wedding reception.

In Home And Away, Brax's transfer van is run off the road into the river and the jailbird is missing, presumed dead. Hmm, suspicious!

Death and destruction!

Controversial kisses

We've never thought Corrie's Sally and Tim were a match made in heaven. So we're not surprised to see her back in the arms of her ex-hubby Kevin as soon as Tim heads off to Wales with Faye!

Over in EastEnders, Ronnie isn't happy when she finds her sister in a clinch with Dean, but manages to climb off her high horse long enough to snog Vincent.

On the other side of the world, in Neighbours, Daniel kisses Imogen and, although they don't physically lock lips, Lauren and Brad share a moment during a blackout at No.32.

Attacked!

Phil's been waiting for an excuse to let his fists do the talking when it comes to Vincent in EastEnders. The club owner plays right into Phil's hands when he changes the name of The Albert to Pearl's without telling him and pays for it with a severe Mitchell hiding!

Meanwhile, in Hollyoaks, Sienna is still unaware that Carly is Ben's daughter and, convinced something is going on between them, they come to blows. Eek!

Phil gives Vincent a final warning

SOAP SNIPPET

Libby is returning to Albert Square

Walford welcomes back Libby Fox this week for a fleeting visit – just two episodes in fact. Brainbox Libby returns to EastEnders from Oxford University to celebrate her birthday with mum Denise, but as always in Soapland, there's more to her comeback than meets the eye. "It's great to be back again," said Belinda Owusu, who plays Libby. "I'm always excited to see how Libby has grown and to be back with the Fox family."

Hide and seek

Sarah's heart is in her mouth in Corrie when Max comes out of the bedroom in Callum's flat brandishing a gun he's found. Callum prises it from Max's hands, but Sarah sees her man in a different light. At last!

Meanwhile, Carla's also hiding something – her gambling addiction. But Michelle is on to her after finding a receipt from a Las Vegas hotel when she was supposed to be in Spain!

Callum takes a gun off Max

A CUPPA WITH... ANTHONY QUINLAN

We chat to the Emmerdale actor, whose character Pete is caught up in a major disaster this week...

You went to the ITV soaps' summer party recently – was it fun?

What a great night! I look forward to those parties. It gets a bit loose...

Yes, Jack P Shepherd was snapped pretending to pee on the Emmerdale sign!

No way! I didn't see that!

They do get a bit wild.

What's it like working so closely with Charley Webb, who plays Debbie?

Charley's brother, Jamie Lomas, is my best friend, so she's like family. She's so talented. You get drawn in by her performances.

Has Jamie ever had words with you about looking after his little sister?

[Laughs] We used to wind him up a little bit!

Are you at all similar to Pete?

More so when he first came into it. The new Pete is quite domesticated and I'm not! Ross is out there to cause a stir at any given opportunity, whereas Pete isn't like that. I guess that's the only similarity – that and he likes the odd pint in The Woolpack!

We didn't think Debbie and Pete would make it down the aisle...

Did you not? Pete's completely unaware of what's been going on between Debbie and Ross. He knows about their history but pushes it to the back of his mind. He's besotted with Debbie and wants to spend the rest of his life with her. He even asks Ross to be an usher. He thinks he's going to get his happy ever after!

But this is Emmerdale! Can you tell us what happens?

There's going to be a big disaster. It's going to be the biggest stunt Emmerdale has ever done and a massive shock to the audience.

Joss Mooney, Adam Graham & Phil Savage

Check out this tasty trio! These oh-so hunky physiques are owned by three of the stars of new ITVBe series Life On Marbs. One word: yum!

If you haven't tuned in yet, the show takes us behind the scenes in party-mad Marbella, so think large bar tabs, tiny bikinis and, of course, rock-hard abs.

Joss, 27, is a fitness trainer (shocker) and model (double shocker) from Manchester. You may recognise him from Ex On The Beach, where he famously hooked up with new! columnist Vicky Pattison!

Adam, 25, is a property manager and waiter, while Phil, 34, is a club owner who helped devise the legendary champagne spray parties. What a claim to fame!

We don't doubt that hearts will be breaking around the infinity pool with these lads on the prowl.

Get us a one-way ticket to the Costa Del Sol, pronto!

MARCHELLE'S DREAM GENES!

How gorgeous will Mark Wright and Michelle Keegan's kids be when they finally come along (Michelle's baby riddle, issue 632)? The newlyweds are both ridiculously good-looking, so imagine what cute babies they'll have. Also, I reckon Michelle will rock a baby bump really well. Let's watch this space... Marie, Teeside

Their children will have won the genetic lottery, that's for sure! A Nicky Clarke goody bag worth £50 is on its way to you.

ZAYN'S WEEK FROM HELL!

I think it was a bit out of order of Zayn Malik to call Naughty Boy a "fat joke" (Zayn's biggest blow yet!, issue 632). Zayn has a lot of young fans, so he's not exactly setting a good example by slating his ex-mate's weight. Could the news he's been dropped by Simon Cowell's record label be down to karma?! Maybe...

Shelly, London

SHAME ON YOU, KIERAN!

I was embarrassed that Katie Price's husband Kieran tried to teach Harvey to say "knob" on This Morning ('Sex with Kieran keeps me in great shape!', issue 632). Katie's always going on about people putting her down, so it's odd her hubby is teaching her son to insult people!

EXPRESS your selfie!

Richard Hadfield from Collabro tells us about one of his fave snaps

Since winning Britain's Got Talent in 2014, boyband Collabro have been travelling the globe, performing for fans all over the world – and they've documented it all on their Instagram feed! One-fifth of the band, Richard Hadfield, talks us through this snap taken in Japan on June 12...

So, Richard, what's the story behind this group selfie?

We were invited out to Japan originally to go on Music Station – a show with 30 million viewers. The producer liked us so much the first time he invited us back and we sang Let It Go, which went down a storm. We were all waiting backstage and I was like, "Boys, we really need to get a picture with this in the background!"

What are your Japanese fans like?

They're so lovely and loyal. We did a showcase out there, and afterwards 400 people queued

Collabro via Instagram

We are so excited to be on music station tonight! We love you Japan!!!

up to see us. Normally, in the UK, they'd want autographs and pictures, but they simply wanted to shake our hands! It was totally different – the respect was so lovely and unexpected.

What do you think about the selfie craze?

People don't want autographs any more – they ask for selfies instead. I think selfies are cool. I remember when they weren't even called selfies – I guess they've always been around, they just never had a name!

Is it difficult for you all to fit in a group selfie?

Yes! Jamie has the longest arms so he normally takes them, which helps, but it's tough to get everyone in. You have no idea how long it takes to get a selfie, especially when we're all a bit tired – and then there will be half a face missing out so we have to do it again!

Is there any competition to get to the front of the selfie?

No, we're all pretty chilled, there's no fighting to get to the front.

Have any of you ever had a diva moment where you didn't want

a selfie to go up because you didn't think you looked very good?

I don't want to put anyone! I think being in the public eye can sometimes make you feel insecure because you want to look your best all the time for everyone. But I think as long as we're ourselves, that's all that matters.

Do you have a Collabro selfie stick?

Yes! We actually took a selfie every night on tour and Matt had a Bluetooth selfie stick!

What's the coolest selfie you've taken?

Whenever we go to different countries, it's selfie central and we get one in each place. For me, when we had a picture with Jonny Wilkinson it was massive because I'm such a big rugby fan.

Have any of you ever taken a belfie?

Jamie fell asleep on a plane once and I took a selfie of my bum next to his face, if that counts!

Collabro will be performing a picnic proms concert at Betley Concerts on August 16. Visit Signal1.co.uk for tickets
